Right: a 1914 Star awarded to the first British soldier killed in action during the First World War – £17,000 at Dix Noonan Webb.

The first of the fallen

This otherwise humble 1914 Star acquired great historical resonance in the knowledge it was awarded to Private John Parr of the 4th Battalion, Duke of Cambridge's Own (Middlesex Regiment). Killed in action near Mons on August 21, 1914, he is believed to be the first British soldier to have died during the First World War.

The medal was offered for sale on August 17 at Dix Noonan Webb as part of the collection of First World War medals owned by the late Barry Hobbs (1942-2021) with a guide of £1800-2200 but sold at £17,000 (plus 24% buyer's premium). The buyer was described as a new collector resident in the UK and a very keen amateur historian of the Great War.

Parr, who signed up to the Middlesex Regiment in 1912 at the age of 15, arrived in France among the first units of the British Expeditionary Force on August 14, 1914.

The precise circumstances of his death are not entirely clear. However on August 21, in his role as a reconnaissance cyclist, he had been sent forward towards the village of Obourg, north-east of Mons, to locate the German positions. It is thought that he had encountered an Uhlan (lancer) patrol from the German First Army and was killed in an exchange of fire.

Parr lies buried in St Symphorien Military Cemetery, near Mons, Belgium, his grave symbolically opposite that of George Edwin Ellison (5th Royal Irish Lancers). The latter died on November 11, 1918, and is considered the last British soldier killed in action during the Great War.

Winterton expands with Tamworth site

by Laura Chesters

Richard Winterton Auctioneers is expanding in Staffordshire with the opening of a new saleroom in Tamworth this autumn.

The family firm, which has been auctioneering in the county for seven generations since 1864, has taken on the lease of the former Arts Centre in Church Street.

Richard Winterton, who already runs The Lichfield Auction Centre in Staffordshire, said: "We have a lot of regular clients in the Tamworth area and they too are delighted. To be able to work from such a historic building is a great honour."

The Grade II-listed building has been a theatre, malt house, Baptist church and a council-run music and arts centre. It was most recently the county council's register office until it vacated the building last year.

The 3700 sq ft building will accommodate new salerooms for live specialist auctions and will be open to the public daily for free valuations.

The Winterton family's auctioneering heritage began at the Smithfield livestock market in Lichfield which

Drake jar sets US ceramics record

The record for American ceramics – previously held by Salisbury's Woolley & Wallis – was smashed this month by a 'Dave the Slave' jar. The 25-gallon stoneware jar was sold by Sparks, Maryland firm Crocker Farm for a massive $1.3m (£1m).

Interest in the enigmatic 19th century enslaved black potter Dave Drake's work is at an all-time high.

Dealer launches advice service as extra Brexit red tape takes effect

by Roland Arkell

A Cambridgeshire dealer in decorative antiques has launched a customs clearance and advisory service aimed at dealers and collectors who buy in post-Brexit Europe.

St Neots-based Kevin Hairsine, who studied for a qualification in Customs Compliance to Level 3 at the online UK Customs Academy, has developed Hairsines Customs Clearance, which is currently providing general advice for £180 a year.

Shortly, following a series of test runs earlier in the year, the firm will act as a customs agent, providing industry-specific customs clearance services for clients who have difficulties with the new regulations – "whether a weekend flea market enthusiast or a regular importer of stock from the EU". "Brexit has definitely created a lot of new paperwork and protocols," says Hairsine. "I first began to study the regulations as buying in Europe has been an important part of my business for more than a decade. I then talked to a few people in the trade and realised this might be something others would be prepared to pay for."

> Brexit has definitely created a lot of new paperwork

Since the UK came out of the single market in January, many traders have found themselves dealing with a complex trade border now subject to tax payments and other formalities. As well as the rules surrounding cultural objects and those subject to CITES controls, all antiques (objects more than 100 years old) and paintings and sculpture are subject to an import duty of 5%, whereas 'vintage' items that are less than a century old attract the full 20% VAT rates and some extra import duties.

Bringing commercial goods to the UK also requires the services of an importing agent – fees are dependent on the size and number of transactions.

Hairsine recommends dealers now consider spending more time in Europe while on buying trips to complete all paperwork necessary (including receipts, detailed packing lists, unit weights) or make a Delayed Declaration through an agent that allows for a grace period of 175 days to settle import taxes.

"We are currently working with several customs operators within the EU to enable a smooth EU export process," he adds. "Clients will be guided on how to give us the relevant information to enable us to submit their customs declarations to HMRC. We will then advise them how to pay any UK tax liabilities due."

The rules are expected to become more complex from December 31, when the UK introduces full customs controls (some changes were delayed to give businesses time to adjust). Extra red tape next year will come in the form of a Safety and Security Declaration – an early 'entry summary declaration' due before goods cross the UK border.

The impact of the new barriers to the trade has already been felt in both directions, although Covid-19 restrictions make this difficult to quantify.

Police issue CCTV image after 'brazen' watches theft at centre

Cheshire Police have issued CCTV images of two men they would like to speak to in connection with a theft at an antiques centre in Northwich.

Sometime between 1.19pm and 1.34pm on Sunday, August 1, burglars are believed to have entered the shop Farrow House in Blakemere Village.

While a receptionist was distracted, pliers were used to cut the locks on a display case and a large number of pocket and wristwatches were stolen.

DC Claire Heatley said: "This was a brazen theft where a large number of items totalling approximately £2500 were taken.

"A number of enquiries have been under way since the incident and we are looking to speak to the men depicted in the CCTV as we believe that they could assist us with our investigation.

"If you know the men, we urge you to contact us – the same goes for anyone with any information in relation to the theft or may have seen these items being sold on."

Above: Cheshire Police would like to question these two men in connection with a theft at Farrow House in Blakemere.

The items taken, belonging to store owner Andrew Icely, included 10 silver pocket watches (including two Georgian miniature pair cased watches) and 10 20th century gentleman's wristwatches.

Among the more identifiable pieces are a gold dress watch by Garrard and three 9ct gold Buren watches issued as presentation pieces to an ICI employee in 1957, 1959 and 1961.

Anyone with information is asked to contact Cheshire Police on 101 quoting IML 1051555 or contact Crimestoppers anonymously by calling 0800 555 111.

Farrow House has recently reopened after it was shut for 14 months during the pandemic.

Demolishing estimate – a debt repaid by £550,000

Hannam's in Selborne, Hampshire, has achieved a new house record with the sale of this Qing famille rose vase for £550,000 (plus buyer's premium).

On August 6, this 12in (30cm) twin-handled ruby ground vase was competed by seven phone lines way beyond its guide of £15,000-20,000. The buyer was from mainland China.

Together with a jade buddha, the vase had been given in lieu of a debt for a demolition job in the 1980s.

In good condition save some small areas of glaze loss, it has a Qianlong (1735-96) mark and the auction house deemed it 'probably of the period'.

Pick of the week

Dave's jar breaks US ceramics record

In an environment where many institutions are eager to plug gaps in collections hitherto dominated by the output of white male elites, auction records have tumbled in recent years.

The previous hammer price high of $300,000 for Drake's work jar had been set by Brunk of Asheville, North Carolina, in November 2020.

The Crocker Farm jar, first 'discovered' in the 1960s by Southern folk historian and author Dr John Burrison, is widely published. At just over 2ft (61cm) high, it is among the largest of Drake's known works (it has four handles to aid with transport) and is made with a poured rather than a dipped glaze.

Its most arresting feature is a sgrafitto inscription A very Large Jar which has 4 handles / pack it full of fresh meats – then light candles.

More than 30 of Drake's jars include 'poems'. Proof that he was was literate at a time when many enslaved African Americans were not, they also provide a window into the mind of one of the few enslaved craftsmen to be granted an identity.

This verse, which references the practice of sealing meal jars with candle wax to aid preservation, is also signed and dated LM April 12 1858 Dave. The LM stands for Lewis Miles, Drake's owner, who ran the Stony Bluff pottery in South Carolina's Edgefield District from 1840-68.

The vessel's grand proportions are denoted by 25 short incised slash marks, haphazardly scrawled in rows, between two handles.

Crocker Farm operates a curious bidding protocol in which all participants register their interest online before the four leading bidders are contacted and bid by phone. On this occasion all four 'last men standing' were American museums.

With 20% premium, the jar sold for $1.56m, nearly doubling the previous auction record for an American ceramic set by the £460,000 John Bartlam porcelain teapot at Woolley & Wallis in 2018.

PAD London fair postponed to 2022

The annual PAD London fair scheduled for October 11-17 has been cancelled as the fall-out from the pandemic continues.

While the restrictions that led to to the postponement of last year's fair have been lifted, the organisers did not believe the conditions were right to proceed with the boutique fair next month. Sixty-one dealers had signed up.

Instead, dates have been proposed for next year: either October 3-9 or October 10-16.

The historical design, tribal art and modern art fair takes place in Berkeley Square, Mayfair. It typically takes over the marquee used for the LAPADA Art & Antiques Fair in September, which will not be held until next year (the dates yet to be announced).

Rare Anglo-Saxon gold coin emerges

A gold coin of Ecgberht, king of the West Saxons (802-839) is expected to fetch £150,000-200,000 when it is offered on September 7-8 at Dix Noonan Webb.

The gold penny, or Mancus, of 30 pence bearing the title Ecgbeorht Rex around a monogram of the word Saxon was discovered by a metal detectorist at West Dean, on the Wiltshire-Hampshire border in March 2020.

It is the only late Anglo-Saxon gold coin in private hands; the other eight specimens are in institutions (the British Museum having seven and another being in Lausanne).

It was struck at a West Saxon mint, possibly Southampton or Winchester, using natural gold (neither refined nor artificially alloyed). Its considerable value (a mancus had the buying power of 30 silver coins and could have bought more than 360 loaves of bread) suggest it was probably produced for ceremonial use or for high-status payments.

During his reign Ecgberht appears to have maintained the independence of Wessex against the kingdom of Mercia and his military successes, peppered by the odd setback, fundamentally changed the political landscape of Anglo-Saxon England. He was buried in Winchester, as were his son, Æthelwulf, his grandson, Alfred the Great, and his great-grandson, Edward the Elder.

Left: gold coin of Ecgberht, king of the West Saxons – estimate £150,000-200,000 at Dix Noonan Webb in the September 7-8 auction.

Department store becomes NY art hub

A former department store on Madison Avenue, New York, is to become a new home for art dealers.

The Art House development is planned by the team who helped bring the art fair TEFAF to New York: Artvest Partners' Michael Plummer and Jeff Rabin and Touchstone Event Management's Geoff Fox.

They plan to turn the Barneys New York store at 660 Madison Avenue into exhibition spaces and salon viewing rooms as well as hosting a series of events over five floors. It is designed to be an "epicentre of year-round activities for galleries, museums, artists, and collectors".

Plummer said: "Art dealers and galleries need exhibition platforms that are more sustainable and flexible than the traditional modes of art fairs and brick-and-mortar gallery spaces."

The launch of art fairs at the building is scheduled for the autumn with Art House New York Fall on November 4 featuring 60 exhibitors. It will be followed by a spring edition in May 2022.

Christie's offers a curator 'jumpstart'

Christie's is offering an up-and-coming curator the chance to organise a two-week-long London art exhibition in January.

The non-selling group show at King Street titled Next at Christie's: London 2022 is designed to showcase the talents of aspiring curators and artists either currently studying or recently graduated. The auction house describes it as "an exciting opportunity for [both] to jumpstart their careers in the art world".

Applicants to fill the role (open until September 3) are asked to explain what this opportunity would mean for them, summarise an exhibition proposal, and confirm they are available to work in London on the project from September 2021 through to January 2022.

The successful applicant will select and liaise with 15-20 artists, choose the works for exhibition and present them to a committee for approval.

Christie's will give the winning curator or curatorial team the necessary guidance and resources, and both the curator and the artists will be paid an engagement fee.

Auction firm opens in New Zealand

A new auction house has been launched in Whanganui in New Zealand's North Island.

Heritage Art Auctions managing director Henry Newrick says: "After just over 50 years of buying and selling art at other auctions and through my own gallery I have taken the plunge and set up a new art auction house here.

"Although a small country at the bottom of the world (not a bad place to be at the moment), we are nevertheless rich in quality art. I returned 'home' four years ago after 22 years in the UK (London and Hove)."

The first sale is scheduled for September 11.

Above: on September 11 Heritage Art Auctions in Whanganui, New Zealand, will be selling this oil painting by Aert van Antum.

Sale commemorates a superb collection

The Robin Simpson (1940-2020) collection of British commemorative ceramics comes for sale next month.

Well known for an encyclopaedic knowledge of British history, Simpson, who worked for the Department of Trade and Industry, was considered the leading collector.

Focusing on wares from the pre-Victorian period, he amassed a collection of more than 550 pieces over 30 years chronicling royal, social, political, war and maritime events from the reign of William and Mary to the 1838 coronation. He was aided in his quarry by Kensington Church Street dealer the late John May.

Simpson had hoped that the collection might remain intact in an institution but, after enquires led nowhere, he entered into discussions with Andrew Hilton of Historical & Collectable, known for its regular specialist auctions of commemoratives, to handle the sale.

Hilton will conduct what promises to be a landmark auction in conjunction with Woolley & Wallis of Salisbury on September 8.

Left: Leeds or Staffordshire creamware teapot and cover, c.1763-66, painted in black with the inscription No Cyder Act and Apples at Liberty. It references Lord Bute's Cider Bill, a tax introduced in 1763 to pay for the ever-mounting cost of the Seven Years War. Such was its unpopularity, especially in the West Country, that Bute was forced to resign with the bill finally repealed in 1766. With a provenance to Sampson & Horne, it is guided at £2000-2500 by Historical & Collectable on September 8.

The money raised from the sale of a collection of 2300 antiquarian books left to an Oxfam shop in Tavistock, Devon – equivalent to its yearly profit. Collector Andres Nurmela, who died in January, had visited the shop every Tuesday. The books ranged in value from £20 to £1000 and included a first edition of the fourth impression of Mrs Beeton's Book of Household Management from 1866, The Times reported. The shop sold about 80 books and a private collector bought the rest.

Front page pair of £68,000 candelabra headed a varied auction with plenty of highlights

by Terence Ryle

While dominated by the £68,000 pair of French ormolu-mounted, white marble and porphyry candelabra illustrated on the front page of ATG No 2503, the Summer Fine Art auction at Tennants (20% buyer's premium) enjoyed highlights across a diverse range of collecting disciplines.

A Japanese koro by Namikawa Yasuyuki, a Renaissance revival ivory and ebony chessboard and a Rolex made to commemorate the UK Apache helicopter operations were all part of the Leyburn sale on July 16-17. In all, 86% of the 471 lots were sold, totalling £403,550.

Reynolds commission

A pair of Chinese export coffee cups and saucers were from a service commissioned by portraitist Sir Joshua Reynolds (1723-92). Both are decorated with a monogram, almost certainly designed by Reynolds himself, which is constructed using all the letters in his name and title.

Elements of the service, c.1785, are noted in David Sanctuary Howard's Chinese Armorial Porcelain (1974) together with an illustration of a tea caddy which is held in the collection of Dr Johnson's House in the City of London.

Tennants' pieces hailed from the private collection of the Aylmer family, who are descended from Reynolds' elder sister, Mary Palmer (1716-94). Sold separately, each had an estimate of £200-300, but they brought differing prices on account of condition. The better of the two sold at £600 while the other, with a broken and restored saucer, made £300.

From 1695-1820, some 4000 families are known to have imported crested services before the imposition of a hefty import tax made Chinese porcelain prohibitively expensive.

Also popular with courtly Europeans at the time were the blue and white 'scholar's' wares made during the 17th century. At Tennants a 10in (25.5cm) tall rouleau vase painted with a mountainous landscape bore a Chenghua reign mark (1464-87) but was catalogued as probably Kangxi (1661-1722).

Pitched at £1000-1500, it sold to a UK collector against Chinese interest at £5500.

Highlights from Tennants' Summer Fine Art sale in Leyburn on July 16-17.

1. Cloisonné koro by Namikawa Yazayuki – £12,000 at Tennants.

2. A c.1655 lantern clock by Richard Beck – £5000.

3. A pair of 18th century giltwood girandole mirrors – £7200.

4. A 19th century mahogany dining table – £9500.

5. Italian Renaissance revival ivory and ebony chess board – £8500.

Above: one of two pairs of Chinese export coffee cups and saucers from a service commissioned by portraitist Sir Joshua Reynolds – this one made £600.

It was a Japanese piece which led the Asian material: a c.1880-90, 4in (10.5cm) tall spherical cloisonné enamel koro and cover by the remarkable Namikawa Yasuyuki (1845-1927).

Having been a Samurai during the last years of the military nobility, Yasuyuki turned to art with the Meiji Restoration, joined the Kyoto Cloisonné Company in 1871 and set up on his own three years later.

He enjoyed almost immediate success, becoming one of only two cloisonné artists ever appointed as imperial household artist. Tennants' piece, worked in coloured enamels and gold and silver wire and bearing a four-character signature to a silver tablet, was textbook stuff. There was Asian interest but a London dealer took it at £12,000, triple the mid-estimate.

A 17-lot collection of 18th century English glass was topped by an early heavy baluster – a very popular collecting niche of late. This example dating from c.1710 was 6¼in (16cm) tall and had a triple-collar stem. It sold at £3000, the same bid tendered for a 7½in (19.5cm) tall, c.1730, goblet moulded with nipped diamond waves to the funnel bowl. Both pieces went to collectors.

Two very different English ceramic lots took £950: a pair of 9in (23cm) tall Chelsea Gold Anchor baluster vases and covers with some losses and repairs sold to the London trade and a c.1800 Prattware stirrup cup modelled as a hound catching a hare sold to an overseas collector.

Board beauty

Outstanding among the collectables on the second day was a c.1880, 17¾in

Snuffbox copy has its own charms

Along with the Summer Fine Art sale, Tennants held a jewellery, watches and silver sale on July 17. Best of the antique collectables was a gold-mounted and enamel 2⅛in (6.5cm) wide snuffbox.

It bore a maker's mark M, a charge mark imitating that of pre-revolutionary Paris tax officials Henry Clavel and Jean-François Kalendrin and an imitation date letter for Paris 1777. However, the catalogue made it clear that it was probably a 19th century German piece. Nevertheless, enamelled all over with scenes of putti in landscapes and an altar, it was attractive in its own right. Against a £1200-1800 estimate, it was a London trade buy at £4200.

The London trade also took a pair of early 20th century Cartier rock crystal and sapphire cufflinks which more than tripled the top estimate at £4800 while, also redolent of its age, a 1935 architectural-style diamond ring featuring a raised solitaire brilliant cut stone in a baguette cut diamond frame doubled expectations at £12,000.

Watch with firepower

Rolex was the major name among the watches at Tennants but an Explorer II Oyster Perpetual Date Chronometer had extra firepower.

It was No 18 of a limited edition commissioned in 2014 to commemorate the UK Apache operations which were offered to the 48 longest-serving members of the British Army Air Corps Force. With all the functions and guarantees of a Rolex Oyster, it also depicted an Apache and union flag on the screw back.

Estimated at £12,000-15,000, it sold to a private buyer at £21,500.

Left: Rolex UK military limited edition Explorer II watch – £21,500 at Tennants.

(45cm) square chess board signed to the frieze drawer Ferd[inand] Pogliani, Milano, Ebeniste – a highly fashionable 19th century specialist in Renaissance-style ebony and ivory works.

Estimated at £1200-1500, the board had some minor lifting to the veneers and a split to one top edge moulding but sold to a UK private buyer at £8500.

Eye-catcher among the clocks was a c.1655 striking lantern clock signed Richard Beck at Ye French Church, Londini. The 15¼in (39cm) tall four-post case was missing its wrought-iron back and brass sides and the 30-hour movement lacked the alarm work. However, Beck was a respected maker and, having died aged 27 in 1659, his works are rare. This one went to the UK trade at a top-estimate £5000.

Topping the furniture was a mahogany triple-pillar dining table from the second quarter of the 19th century. Extending to 11ft 6in (3.53m) with three extra leaves, the 4ft 3in (1.35m) wide table had some bruising and scuffing consistent with age but more than tripled the top estimate in selling to a UK private at £9500.

By contrast, a pair of carved giltwood girandole mirrors were in near showroom condition. Entirely regilded, barring the beak of one the surmounted ho-ho birds, and with later mirror plates and nozzles, the 2ft 8in (82cm) tall mirrors were dated to the third quarter of the 18th century and similar to a design in Chippendale's 1754 Director.

Pitched at £4000-6000, they sold to the trade at £7200.

For a little more, one could almost furnish an entire elegant room in the later Georgian style.

A pair of neo-classical satinwood, tulipwood-banded and polychrome painted card tables, c.1790, were offered together with a similar suite of four armchairs and six single chairs, all with floral painted oval back supports, caned seats and turned legs.

Against a £3000-5000 estimate, the matched lot went to a private buyer at £8500. ■

Webb's Seeds sign grows in value

The pictorial enamel signs advertising Webb's Seeds of Stourbridge are some of the most popular on the market.

Even the smaller signs comprising the company logo and a single bouquet of flowers or veg can bring four-figure sums.

The much larger 'strip' signs measuring just shy of 6ft (1.8m) tall are something of a collecting holy grail: typically they were made in pairs, one depicting a cauliflower, radishes, potatoes and carrots, the other images of a lettuce, tomatoes, a melon and pea pods.

Seldom do they come to market and the example offered by Evesham, Worcestershire firm GW Railwayana (18% buyer's premium) on July 23 would be hard to beat (left). It was in excellent condition with only minor face chips and no restoration to the enamel.

In the run-up to the sale it had received bids over £5000 and cometh the hour it was competed by top-end collectors to £12,700.

It is among the highest prices paid for a British enamel sign and perhaps the highest for a subject that was not transport-related.

Many of the top sums for signs are captured by those with automotive subjects including the famous BP The Winner sign, an example of which took a record £28,000 at Canterbury Auction Galleries in 2005.

Pendant and earrings boast impressive provenances

The central stone to this Art Deco seed pearl and diamond pendant, offered for sale at Lyon & Turnbull's (25% buyer's premium) Jewellery & Watches sale in London on July 1, is an elongated cushion-shaped pink sapphire, weighing about 25ct.

It is accompanied by a GCS report stating that it is a natural gem, with no indications of heating, with a probable Sri Lankan origin.

The 4.4cm pendant was formerly the property of Marija Barachuté, who was born in Lithuania in 1911 in a mining community but moved to Glasgow when still a small child.

After changing her name to Mary Barclay, she left Glasgow for the US at the age of 16 and she settled in Chicago.

She lived there for about five years – probably acquiring this pendant that is almost certainly of American manufacture – before returning to Scotland.

Highly saturated medium pink tones such as this are considered among the best pink sapphires.

It was estimated at £4000-6000 but sailed away to reach £156,000.

Londonderry jewels

An equally well-provenanced jewel was offered by Woolley & Wallis (25% buyer's premium) on July 15.

The firm's Fine Jewellery sale included a pair of Burmese ruby and diamond earrings from the family of Edith Vane-Tempest-Stewart (née Chaplin), Marchioness of Londonderry (1878-1959).

Chaplin, daughter of the 1st Viscount Chaplin, became the 7th Marquess when her husband inherited the family estates in 1915. At Mount Stewart in County Down she created a legendary garden, while at Londonderry House on Park Lane she assumed the role of influential London political hostess.

Her work with the Women's Legion for Work in the First World War led to her being made the first-ever Dame Commander in the Military Division of the Order of the British Empire.

The Londonderry family jewels – a selection of which are now on loan to the jewellery gallery of the V&A – were famously spectacular.

Edith documented and researched the Down Diamonds, the Golconda Stomacher, the Turquoise Parure, the Siberian Emeralds and the Russian Amethysts, and the Bonaparte-Murat Pearls as well as the Antrim Rubies, while patronising the finest jewellers in London and Paris.

This pair of earrings dating from the mid 19th century came in an SJ Phillips case and with a GCS certificate stating that the cushion-cut rubies are natural Burmese stones with no indications of heat treatment.

Estimated at £15,000-20,000, they closed the sale in style, selling at £37,000.

Cup with surprise in store

Chinese trick or surprise cups such as this were made to deceive the heavy drinker and illustrate the classical paradigm that modesty brings gain and arrogance results in loss.

If you fill the cup to the top, taking more than your share, the liquid will drain onto your lap through a hole in the bottom. If you only fill the cup half full you can drink normally. The Chinese name Gong Dao Bei means 'don't be greedy' or 'fairness' cup.

The earliest cups of this type were made during the Song dynasty (960-1279) but most are from the mid to late Qing period. This example, probably 19th century, is decorated in famille rose enamels and centred by the figure of a sage.

Offered at Bearnes Hampton & Littlewood (23% buyer's premium) in Exeter on July 13 with a guide of just £50-80, it took £3100.

Above: Chinese trick or surprise cup – £3100 at Bearnes Hampton & Littlewood.

Gold medal for a footy debut

For a time in the mid 1930s players making their debut for England were given an option by the Football Association to receive a gold commemorative medal instead of their normal match fee.

An FA international debut medal awarded to Tom Grosvenor was sold for £10,200 at Fieldings (20% buyer's premium) on July 21-23 as part of a lot also including various other items related to his career, estimated at £4000-6000.

Grosvenor, of Birmingham City, made that first appearance for the match England v Ireland played at Deepdale, Preston, on October 4, 1933.

In 14ct gold, it is inscribed The Football Association, FA International, and to the edge E v.I., 1933-34, T. Grosvenor.

It was offered with a 9ct Football League Medal relating to the same match, Grosvenor's three England caps and his number 8 England football shirt, and further ephemera such as photographs, menus and press cuttings.

Grosvenor was born in Netherton and played for Stourbridge (where Fieldings is based) then Birmingham City. He was sold on to Sheffield Wednesday in 1936 for £2500 and finished his professional career playing for Bolton Wanderers. In his three appearances for England in 1933 he scored twice.

Fry collection's traditional feast

British watercolours and drawings amassed by dealer under the spotlight at two salerooms

by Alex Capon

The two-part sale of the collection of Cyril Fry (1917-2010) at Sotheby's and Chiswick Auctions evoked many memories of the well-known art dealer himself.

A specialist in watercolours and drawings for over 50 years, Fry spoke of "the subtle modesty of the medium". Despite this, he did a huge amount to help such works gain attention and become more fully appreciated.

Born in Forest Gate in east London in 1917, he was the son of a carpenter and left school at 14. Initially working as an office boy and various other jobs (including a spell working for a solicitor who represented the famous dealer Joseph Duveen), he trained as a sign-language teacher and went on to present a BBC TV programme for deaf children.

After 18 years in teaching, his interest in watercolours turned into a profession as he set up a workshop in his Westminster flat where he practised mounting and framing as well as restoring works.

After then launching out as a fully-fledged dealer, he sold works from the flat and later from his house in Blackheath before then taking a lease on a gallery at 59 Jermyn Street.

Specialising in 18th and 19th century works in particular, Fry and his wife Shirley grew the business and were at the forefront of the rising market in the 1970s-80s, selling works to important collectors such as Paul Mellon and Leonard Duke. The Sotheby's catalogue stated that "his taste and interests helped shape a whole generation of British collectors in the field".

> The sale featured many group lots of works on paper as well as single items, making it perfect for connoisseurs and dealers alike

The Fry Gallery eventually closed in the 1990s when their lease ended, although Cyril and Shirley continued their operations from Aldeburgh in Suffolk. Shirley's death earlier this year precipitated the auctions of almost 1000 works in total across the two houses with many pictures unseen since the Jermyn Street gallery had closed its doors.

A smaller group of 72 higher-value lots were offered across two mixed-owner Sotheby's sales in early July, followed by a much larger and more wide-ranging dedicated sale at Chiswick Auctions on July 9.

The dispersal was very much a collaboration with each of the catalogues mentioning the other saleroom's tranche of the collection and a shared introduction penned by art journalist Huon Mallalieu.

The Chiswick sale in particular was a recreation of the sort of auctions that Fry would have attended himself, especially early on, where many of the unframed drawings and watercolours were offered in group lots or bundles in folders. This attracted buyers who enthusiastically came to view and rummage through the many works while also brushing past the dealer's props and furniture that were also on offer.

Suzanne Zack, specialist in charge of the sale at Chiswick, said: "I think both Cyril and Shirley Fry would have appreciated how the sale was presented, complete with plan chests, miniature display easels, book and paper presses, as well as a group of artists' palettes and paint boxes. The sale featured many group lots of works on paper as well as single items, making it perfect for connoisseurs and dealers alike."

Palmer comes top

As with the Frys' dealing philosophy, the sales tended to reflect a focus on quality and artistic interest rather than just 'big names'. The top lot of the collection, however, was certainly by one of the biggest names in English watercolours: a remarkable work by Samuel Palmer (1805-81) from his celebrated 'Shoreham period'.

Offered at Sotheby's (25/20/13.9% buyer's premium, plus 1% overhead premium) sale titled A Fine Line: Master Works on Paper from Five Centuries on July 7, A Shepherd leading his flock under the full moon was one of the visionary landscapes the young artist produced while living in the rural village in Kent from 1825-35.

Despite their small size, these monochrome pastoral scenes are arguably his most powerful and creative works and, with many now in museums such as the Ashmolean, Tate Britain, the British Museum and the Whitworth Art Gallery in Manchester, they rarely appear on the market. One did appear at the sale of the Howard and Saretta Barnet collection at Sotheby's New York in January 2018, selling at $2m (£1.4m) and dramatically raising the bar for these pictures.

The current example had been owned by Leonard Duke and given to Fry sometime before the dealer dispersed the works from Duke's estate following the collector's death in 1971. It was deemed slightly earlier than the Barnet picture, with the 6in x 7in (15 x 18cm) black watercolour over black chalk dating from c.1829-30.

It was well preserved, although two small artist pinholes were visible at the top corners and the thin card on which Palmer had applied the watercolour had been laid down onto a piece of handmade paper.

The composition was perhaps looser and less finely finished than the Barnet picture but, with bidders clearly aware that opportunities to purchase a Palmer 'Shoreham' watercolour likely to remain few and far between, they were prepared to go to similar lengths to acquire this one.

Estimated at £700,000-900,000, it was knocked down at £1.3m – putting it alongside the Barnet watercolour as the only two works by Palmer to have made over £1m at auction.

Another work by a 'big name' in the market, a watercolour of a wagon going through Bagley near Abingdon by JMW Turner (1775-1851) also drew interest among the Fry lots, selling at £68,000 against a £40,000-60,000 guide.

But commanding even more attention was a brightly coloured and exceptionally rare study of bird feathers by Sarah Biffin (1784-1850).

The artist was born without hands, arms or feet – she is thought to have had the condition phocomelia – but taught herself to write and paint, holding the pen or brush between her teeth. She has come to greater prominence in recent years although almost every work that has emerged at auction has been a portrait.

The 4 x 6in (10 x 15cm) watercolour was something of a test of the market for a different type of picture. Although Sotheby's catalogue stated that it displayed "the full extent of her extraordinary talent" with the "soft textures of the feathers rendered in the most realistic way", the small size and unusual subject no doubt led to the cautious £4000-6000 estimate.

But with the artist's life and work becoming continually more recognised, the picture drew hefty competition and was knocked down at £52,000. Only the self-portrait of the artist with her easel that made £110,000 at Sotheby's in December 2019 has fetched more for a work by Biffin (see ATG No 2422).

Perhaps Fry was ahead of the curve in acquiring this diminutive work at a time when prices for the artist were often no more than a few hundred pounds?

The hammer total from the Fry collection across the two Sotheby's sales was £1.79m with 63 of the 72 lots sold (88%).

Mark Griffith-Jones, Sotheby's British watercolours and drawings specialist, said: "It was a great honour to work with such a distinguished private collection put together by a couple who were at the heart of the London art market for such a long period of time." ■

Sale evokes Jermyn Street memories

With Chiswick Auctions' (25% buyer's premium) dedicated sale of works from the Fry collection running to over 900 separate items, the specialist in charge Suzanne Zack said it was "one of the largest and most wide-ranging collections focused on watercolours and drawings that I have catalogued".

The works were grouped into 136 lots – mainly 18th and 19th century British drawings and watercolours but also a handful of lots comprising the dozens of fittings and pieces of furniture that had once graced the dealer's Jermyn Street gallery. The whole event evoked memories of 50 years ago when the Fry Gallery was at its height.

The auction house said the sale on July 9 attracted "enthusiastic bidding from collectors" with 124 lots sold (91%) for a £86,865 hammer total, a figure near the top end of the £58,600-88,650 estimate for the collection.

The lots were bought by 63 different buyers, around 40% of whom were new clients, both trade and private.

Chiswick head of fine art Adrian Biddell said: "In today's fast-paced world traditional British watercolours and drawings can easily be overlooked, so it was very reassuring that the sale attracted much interest primarily among UK buyers but also internationally."

Easel does it

Among the group lots of the props from the Fry Gallery, a collection of 11 small wooden easels, perfect for displaying watercolours on a table or desk, attracted wide interest against a £100-150 pitch and sold to the French trade at £2200. Guided at the same level, a charming group of 10 artist's paint boxes from the 19th and early 20th century (some containing original pigments and palettes) took £1400.

It was a similar story with the watercolours. Ten unframed Grand Tour views, including three formerly in the collection of Leonard Duke, overshot a £300-500 estimate and took £1500, while a group of 26 mixed portraits and figure studies surpassed a £200-300 pitch and sold at £850.

The highest individual price of the sale came for a study of trees of a rocky outcrop by John White Abbott (1763-1851).

A small but detailed sketch, the 9¾ x 12¼in (24 x 21cm) pen, ink and wash composition was a characteristic work with a delicate treatment of the subject and an attractive rendering of outline and shade.

The artist was a surgeon and apothecary by trade but, as a keen amateur painter who took lessons from his friend Francis Towne, he became a notable artist in his own right.

Although he reputedly never sold a picture, his works received some acclaim and he became an honorary member of the Royal Academy of Art.

His works on paper appear quite often on the market and can make a wide range of prices – the highest normally coming for brighter watercolours, although the record of £140,000 was set at Sotheby's in March 2000 for a large pen and ink drawing of Ugbrooke Park in Devon.

The setting here was thought to be Dovedale, Derbyshire. Estimated at £1000-1500, it was knocked down at £4200 to the London trade – a sum that was above average for a work of this size and medium.

On the Hunt: bidders on the artist's trail

One of the most-represented names in the Fry collection was William Henry Hunt (1790-1864), an artist on whom the dealer staged major exhibitions in 1967 and 1981.

Commercially, Hunt has become rather neglected since the days he was championed by Fry and the 19 works offered in July from his collection represented the most prominent offering for at least a decade, possibly two.

Nine of the 10 works offered at Sotheby's sold for a combined £87,950 (including premium) with a further £9725 raised from the nine lots at Chiswick Auctions (all of which sold). Leading the pack at both salerooms were interior scenes with female figures.

A watercolour of a woman bottle-feeding a pig called The Orphan made the highest price among the lots at Sotheby's, exceeding a £3000-5000 estimate and selling at £20,000. It was the highest price for the artist at auction for 17 years (source: Artprice by Artmarket).

Over at Chiswick, A Lady Reading by Lamplight was also a work capturing the intimate atmosphere of an interior with the typical 'warm-glow' associated with the London-born artist. It sold on low estimate at £4000 to a private American collector.

While Hunt achieved great success with such works during his lifetime, the somewhat cloying sentiment of the pictures does not always appeal to modern minds – something which, generally, has affected price levels negatively. However, one work on offer at Sotheby's represented a different part of his oeuvre: still-life painting, an area which may well belie this trend.

The small watercolour of an oyster shell and an onion dated from 1859 and had been painted for his friend John Ruskin (who regarded Hunt as one of the greatest still-life painters of the age). The 4¾x 6¾in (12 x 17cm) watercolour and bodycolour certainly demonstrated Hunt's meticulous observation of detail and vivid use of colour and, although it had featured in Fry's 1981 exhibition, the dealer chose to hold onto it.

Here it was estimated at £6000-8000 and, after drawing strong interest, sold at £19,000 – not only a very significant sum per square inch (especially given market conditions), but also setting a record for any still-life by the artist.

De Wint was a Fry favourite

A number of works by Peter De Wint (1784-1849) performed well at both Sotheby's A Fine Line auction on July 7 and the online sale of Old Master and British Works on Paper from July 2-8.

De Wint had been a Cyril Fry favourite ever since the dealer spotted a work by the watercolourist for sale on a pavement stall in Ilford when cycling home – it was one of his first purchases and he paid 10 shillings for it.

The top price here came in the live sale, for a vintage landscape from the late 1830s showing the wooded hills near Lowther in Westmoreland. An attractive work due to its bold composition, technical quality and fine colouring, the 17¾ x 2ft 2in (45 x 56cm) watercolour over pencil also had a favourable subject: the view depicted is near Lowther Castle on the edge of the Lake District, the seat of one of de Wint's principal patrons, William, 2nd Earl of Lonsdale.

Estimated at £8000-12,000, it sold at £11,000.

Invest in the private press sector

Morris works and Sangorski & Sutcliffe bindings stand out in single-owner collection

by Ian McKay

A single-owner collection of private press books produced a number of appealing lots in a wide-ranging Dominic Winter (20% buyer's premium) sale of June 16-17.

Bidding reached £4400 each for two of the Kelmscott Press books offered: one of 300 paper copies of William Morris' own News from Nowhere of 1892 and, more than doubling expectations, one of 350 paper copies of another of his works, The Wood Beyond the World of 1894.

One of 310 copies of the first book issued by the Vale Press, a cloth-bound 1896 edition of The Early Poems of John Milton featuring wood engraved frontispiece, ornaments and initials by Charles Ricketts, sold at £1700.

Bid to £5600 was one of 250 copies on hand-made paper of Urne Buriall and the Garden of Cyrus by Sir Thomas Browne that was illustrated with pochoir coloured plates and text illustrations after drawings by Paul Nash.

The Sangorski & Sutcliffe binding was also designed by Nash.

The colophon of this copy also bore an inscription by the publisher, Desmond Flower: "Out of Series, for myself DF."

Sold at £8500 was an undated (but 1911) edition of Edward Fitzgerald's English verse translation of the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam that featured a peacock-decorated binding originally designed by Francis Sangorski for Sotherans.

The cataloguer suggested that it may have formed part of an edition of 25 such copies printed on Japanese vellum.

A painted vellucent, or transparent vellum binding made for an 1898, first trade edition of William Morris' The Sundering Flood sold for £1400 as part of this same property. It was the work of Dorothy Carleton Smyth, one of five women employed by Cedric Chivers of Bath to design, illuminate and colour such vellum bindings.

Jenner letter

Bid to a mid-estimate £6000 was a previously unpublished letter in the hand of Edward Jenner.

It was sent in April 1802 to a Yorkshire physician, Dr John Glover Loy, following the appearance of a pamphlet (dedicated to Jenner) in which he had proved and underlined Jenner's earlier assertions about the origins of cowpox, especially the fact that it stemmed from an equine disease known as 'grease' or horsepox.

Cities map

Among many cartographic lots in the South Cerney sale was a copy of John Rocque's New and Accurate Survey of the Cities of London and Westminster... of 1748, the general key map and 16 other uncoloured double-page maps now held in a modern binding of half red morocco. It sold at £7000.

Among more modern works was a a presentation copy of Peter Bryant's Two Hours to Doom.

Bearing a presentation inscription from the author, whose real name was Peter George, this was the book that inspired a much more famous film, Stanley Kubrick's Dr Strangelove: Or How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb. It sold at £750.

Illustrated in Previews, ATG No 2497, a board game of c.1855 based on a world map took £1500. ■

Left: one of Luise Dutenhofer's fine paper-cuts, this one dated 1803. Part of a collection of 74 of her cuts that made €22,000 (£18,965) at Ketterer Kunst.

Expert shows cutting-edge skills

In terms of improvement on expectations, the most successful lot in a May 31 sale held in Hamburg by Ketterer Kunst (25% buyer's premium) was a two-album collection of early 19th century paper-cuts by a renowned exponent of that art, Luise Dutenhofer (1776-1829).

Mostly working from a folded sheet, her scissor technique resulted in two copies of each cut. One of these albums, once in the collections of the poet Friedrich von Matthison, had been received as a birthday gift from their creator.

Together, the two albums contained a total of 74 mounted examples of her exquisite work, 10 of them on coloured rather than the more familiar black paper. Estimated at €1200, they sold for €22,000 (£18,965) to a Bavarian collector.

Thought most likely to have been created for use at the University of Paris, a 13th century manuscript compilation of Aristotle's writings on logic topped the German sale. It attracted a lot of European and US interest and sold in the end at €72,000 (£61,920) to an English bidder.

All the works in this volume, said the saleroom, related to what is called the 'Old Logic', that corpus of philosophical logic based on the Aristotelian translations and original compositions of Boethius.

Right: seemingly fearless, these men are standing on top of the inflated Örnen in a photograph taken during preparations for its polar flights. From an album sold for Skr120,000 (£10,170) at Stockholms Auktionswerk.

Records of doomed expedition

Offered in a June 16 book sale held by Stockholms Auktionswerk (22.5% buyer's premium) were two unpublished diaries relating to Salomon August Andrée's ill-fated attempts attempt to reach the North Pole by balloon.

In July 1897 Andrée and two companions, Knut Fraenkel and Nils Strindberg, left Spitsbergen in their balloon Örnen and disappeared.

It was not until 1930 that two Norwegian walrus hunters who had gone ashore on White Island to look for fresh water found the bodies of the three aeronauts.

They also found Andrée's diary and even cylinders of exposed film from which some images relating to their attempts to find help were eventually retrieved.

What the recent Swedish sale had were two lengthy, detailed and often quite forthright, even critical diaries kept by Axel Stakes, the engineer who had been responsible for designing the equipment by which the Örnen was filled with hydrogen, both for an aborted attempt of 1896 and that fateful expedition of the following year.

Prior to auction it was announced that, because of their historic significance, the diaries would be subject to an export ban, but they still sold at a notably higher than estimate Skr450,000 (£38,135).

A splendidly bound album that had belonged to Stakes, containing almost 60 photographs relating to preparations for the expedition, had carried a higher estimate than his diaries, but fell a little short of expectations at Skr120,000 (£10,170).

Four sofas from a suite of seat furniture made for Raynham Hall, Norfolk, in the 1790s form part of Sworders' Fine Interiors sale on September 14-15.

The grey painted sofas in the 'French antique' or 'Grecian' style with beaded frames were almost certainly commissioned by George, 1st Marquess Townshend (d.1807). He enjoyed a glittering military career serving under General James Wolfe at the siege of Quebec in 1759 and was appointed Lord Lieutenant of Ireland from 1767-72. His second wife, Anne Montgomery, was Mistress of the Robes to Caroline, Princess of Wales, from 1795-1820.

These sofas were part of a suite recorded in the drawing room at Raynham in an inventory taken after the untimely death of the 2nd Marquess in 1811. It was inherited in the Victorian era by Captain John Townshend (d.1863), a Royal Navy rear-admiral, and MP for Tamworth from 1847-55, and has since come by descent to the 8th Marquess Townshend at Raynham Hall.

Sworders will offer the sofas as two pairs, estimated at £5000-8000 a pair.

A set of 16 chairs from the same set was sold at Christie's for £31,250 in 2013.

The unique group of six medals to SAS trooper Roger Tattersall is guided at £9000-12,000 at the Richard Winterton auction in Lichfield on September 6.

Tattersall (1938-2020) was a member of the Canadian Guards, the Parachute Regiment, 22 SAS Regiment, Rhodesian SAS and South African Forces.

His medals, which come to sale by order of the family, reflect this diverse experience.

Alongside the group in the lot are Tattersall's SAS beret (Rhodesian issue); Parachute Regiment beret, Rhodesian issue; non-marked 1st type dress uniform blue 'stable' belt; and more than 20 photographs featuring Tattersall and comrades in places such as Aden, Radfan and Borneo.

The lot also includes regimental plaques and other personal items including cufflinks, tie pins, Paras metal insignia and two commemorative SAS medallions.

By the King.

A Proclamation for the prizing of Wines.

God save the King.

Imprinted at London by Robert Barker, Printer

This rare Charles I broadside referencing the 'prizing' (pricing) of wines in the moments before the English Civil War is one of just two recorded – the only other copy is in the British Library.

The royal proclamation with a woodcut arms and tail-piece is dated at Windsor, the two and twentieth day of January, in the seventeenth yeer of our Reign for 1642. It sets prices for the best Gascoin and French wines at eighteen pounds the Tun, and the Rochel wines, and other small and thin wines at fifteen pounds the Tun.

It has a guide of £800-1200 at Forum in London on August 26.

Dreweatts is to offer an impressive private collection of rare pianos on September 23. It was amassed by David Winston, who holds a Royal Warrant as Restorer and Conservator of Pianos to HM the Queen. It is comprised of 26 instruments dating from the 18th century to present day.

Among the lots expected to achieve the highest bids is a rare 1925 Pleyel grand piano fitted with an original 'Auto Pleyela' self-playing mechanism, in a chinoiserie Louis XV case (estimate £40,000-60,000, pictured) and a double piano from Pleyel, which is one of only 50 ever made. This model, which has a guide of £30,000-50,000, was once owned by the concert pianist wife of French writer and minister of culture André Malraux.

It is the first time the collection – many of which are one-off pieces with 'significant historic importance' – has been offered in its entirety.

Winston has restored some of the most valuable pianos in the world, including those owned and played by the greatest names in classical music, including Beethoven, Chopin and Liszt.

A late 18th century cello made by Benjamin Banks of Salisbury in 1786 is estimated at £50,000-70,000 in Tennants' sale on September 29.

Banks, known as the 'English Amati', was one of the finest English instrument makers of his age with his cellos being particularly sought-after.

He was born in Salisbury in 1727 and unusually, for such a fine craftsman of the era, remained based there for the rest of his life rather than moving to London. However, he probably had close links with the capital, and certainly sold instruments through dealers there.

The cello bears the original maker's label printed with a decorative scrolling border and BENJAMIN BANKS,/Salisbury, Fecit 17 with the last two digits of the date 86 written in by hand. The label and handwriting of the last two digits of the date are typical of other known examples by the maker.

The instrument was sold by LP Balmforth & Son of Leeds to a gentleman in the north-east England for £165 in 1965, with paperwork certifying its authenticity issued by William E Hill & Sons of New Bond Street, London, in 1938.

A single-owner collection of corkscrews and wine memorabilia is going under the hammer at Special Auction Services in Newbury.

The vendor, François Touzin, started collecting in 1976 when he took his girlfriend, now wife of 44 years, to a BYO restaurant. As the restaurant did not have a corkscrew he purchased one for £4 from the antiques shop next door and from then his interest in them was piqued.

Pictured here is William Burton Baker's patented double lever corkscrew, first made in 1880 by James Heeley & Sons of Birmingham. As Heeley quickly found fault with the mechanism (he realised the concept worked better by attaching the arms to a collar and patented his own design in 1888), manufacturing was abandoned after just a few years.

This scarce example of Baker's model, indistinctly marked James Heeley & Sons Patent Double Lever, forms part of the sale on September 14. Estimate £370-400.

An England international football cap awarded to Sir Alfred (Alf) Ramsey is estimated at £2000-3000 in the Lacy Scott & Knight auction on September 10.

In blue velvet with silver braid and tassle with embroidered England badge, the peak further embroidered YUG 1950-51 and the brown silk interior has a stitched label hand-written in blue ink RAMSEY, size 7 1/8.

The cap was awarded for the England v Yugoslavia international friendly held at Highbury on November 22, 1950, a game in which Ramsey was captain and ended in a 2-2 draw.

Sir Alfred Ernest Ramsey (1920-99) – who most famously managed England to win the 1966 World Cup – played for his country 32 times, captaining the side three times and scoring three goals.

After his ending his career in football in 1979-80 he retired to Ipswich with his wife Lady Victoria Ramsey. This cap was acquired directly from Lady Ramsey by the current vendor while working as a painter and decorator at her home (a letter to support this signed by Lady Ramsey and dated 30/09/2011 accompanies this lot).

Dating from c.1880 to the outbreak of the First World War in 1914, the Belle Epoque was a time of relative peace, optimism and prosperity and jewellery design was made to match.

This diamond set platinum necklace in its original fitted leather and gold tooled case by London & Ryder comes for sale at the Jewellery, Silver & Watches Sale at Cheffins in Cambridge on August 26 with a guide of £3000-5000.

This Charles I period West Country seal-top spoon has marks for Robert Tyte of Salisbury plus the prick-dot engraved ownership initials EB over D and the date 1627. At Lockdales in Ipswich on September 1-2 is expected to bring £600-700.

This maroon leather and aluminium navigator's chair is from a De Havilland DH106 Comet passenger jet airliner. As a restoration project it is guided at £150-200 by Wallis & Wallis of Lewes as part of a Toys, Models & Collectables auction in Lewes on September 6.

The DH106 Comet was the world's first commercial jet airliner, developed and manufactured in Hatfield. Debuted in 1952, three Comets were lost within 12 months after suffering catastrophic in-flight break-ups, although redesigned versions did remain in commercial service until 1981.

Topographical works from early 19th century Canada will form a prominent part of Bonhams' next Travel & Exploration sale in London.

Among a group of such works consigned to the sale on September 14 is this rare painting showing an indigenous figure and settlers by Peter Rindisbacher (1806-34).

The Swiss-born artist painted scenes of life on the North American frontier, including views of native peoples which have become an important historical record of the vanishing way of life that occurred in this period and subsequently.

After arriving in Hudson Bay with his family in 1821, the 15-year-old Rindisbacher, who had already trained as an artist under the Bernese miniaturist Jakob Samuel Weibel, began supporting his family by selling his small but detailed sketches, including some of the Hudson's Bay Company officials.

A series of these early views were later turned into lithographs and published in London in 1823-24 – described as 'taken by a gentleman on the spot'.

The example at Bonhams is titled A Gentleman Travelling in a Dog Cariole in Hudson's Bay with an Indian Guide and shows the traditional mode of transport in the artist's adopted country. Executed in 1824 when the artist was 18, the work is billed as "one of his finest" and estimated at £50,000-80,000.

The Five Centuries sale of traditional Furniture, Paintings & Works of Art at Lyon & Turnbull in Edinburgh on September 1-2 includes this Bow porcelain plate c.1758-63.

The underglaze blue chinoiserie design depicting a figure holding a sceptre followed by a young boy carrying a scroll is affectionately known as the Golfer and Caddy pattern. Like others in this design it has the painted number 12 to the base.

Estimate £250-350.

This cased London Colt model 1851 Navy revolver is an early example with all matching numbers (602) for 1853. In good condition and housed in its period oak fitted case containing a full accompaniment of accessories, it is expected to bring £4000-6000 at the Militaria, Air Guns and Firearms sale at Durrants in Beecles on August 27.

by Gabriel Berner

TEFAF Online 2021, the digital offering replacing this year's TEFAF Maastricht, opens its virtual doors next month with a focused array of top-tier art and antiques from an international roster of dealers.

The event is the second iteration of TEFAF Online and runs from September 9-13 with an invitation-only preview on September 8. Around 700 works of art from over 7000 years of art history, including plenty of Old Masters (the field still at the core of Maastricht), are available to buy from 255 dealers, 12 of them new to TEFAF.

Each exhibitor has been asked to present up to three artworks "that tell a single, compelling story when in conversation with one another", the organisers said.

The online event will also launch TEFAF Collections, a feature containing objects selected by influential names in the art and design world, which are sorted by themes rather than exhibitor.

"These developments to the digital fair, together with a culturally rich itinerary, foster an intimate and educational experience for seasoned collectors and new buyers alike," the organisers added.

It has been a challenging pandemic for TEFAF Maastricht. The 34th edition of the famous Dutch fair was originally planned for March but was pushed back to May due to the coronavirus pandemic, then postponed again until September, when it was scheduled to be held just before Art Basel.

> The trio of works reflects the gallery's commitment to cross-category presentations and collecting

While the latter is going ahead with an in-person event, TEFAF opted to play it safe and announced at the start of the summer that it would instead hold an online-only fair in September.

The organisers have good reason to be cautious following the early closure of last year's fair, held in March, where at least two dozen people tested positive for Covid-19 according to The Art Newspaper. It turned out to be one of the last major in-person fairs held before lockdowns.

Among the UK exhibitors at the digital fair is antique jewellery retailer Wartski which presents three works by the famous Parisian firm of Boucheron. The London jewellers say the pieces – an enamelled gold bracelet, a carved dendritic agate vide-poche and a jewelled and enamelled gold brooch in the shape of an unusually large dragonfly with a 4in (11cm) wingspan – were made during the years 1880-1900 and "demonstrate the range of techniques and materials employed by its founder Frédéric Boucheron".

Old Master drawings gallery Stephen Ongpin Fine Art shows three Italian 16th century drawings each belonging at one time to Joshua Reynolds. The painter's fame and success allowed him to assemble one of the largest collections of paintings, drawings and prints of his day. Largely comprising Italian works from the 16th and 17th centuries, the collection was inherited after his death by his favourite niece Mary Palmer and was eventually sold and dispersed at two auctions in London in 1794 and 1798.

Meanwhile, international dealership Colnaghi casts its net wide with a trio of works spanning classical antiquity to the modern era to reflect "the gallery's commitment to cross-category presentations and collecting".

The selection encompasses a 4th century BC marble head of a woman from Magna Graecia, a Renaissance sculpture in terracotta of John the Baptist by Benedetto da Rovezzano (c.1474-1552) and Nu au bain dans la forêt vierge (c.1907-10), one of Henri Rousseau's (1844-1910) fantastical post-Impressionist 'jungle' paintings.

Kallos Gallery, which is named after the ancient Greek word for 'beauty', has chosen three pieces exemplifying the differing forms of idealised beauty in antiquity.

A Roman marble head fragment of a Polykleitan youth represents the physical ideal of a young man of mid-5th century BC Greece; a greywacke fragmentary figure of Takhibiat, the sistrum-player of Egyptian god Amun-Re, typifies the modest yet desirable depiction of the female form in the early Ptolemaic period; and an Attic white ground lekythos oil flask produced during a time of considerable warfare in Athens shows in its decoration the idealisation of male youth and beauty in funerary art.

Other highlights include an early 19th century pair of silver wine coolers and stands from Koopman Rare Art which originally belonged to Richard William Penn Curzon-Howe, 1st Earl Howe, and a Renaissance bust of a nobleman in Carrara marble descended through the Earls of Carlisle at Castle Howard in North Yorkshire, which is available to buy from sculpture dealership Tomasso.

TEFAF's in-person fairs are set to resume with a hybrid event celebrating TEFAF's 35th anniversary in March next year. ■

Call of the sea heard in London

This large 3ft 11in x 6ft 3in (1.2 x 1.91m) marine picture, painted by French Impressionist Karl Daubigny (1846-86), shows fisherfolk in Normandy loading a traditional fishing vessel with kelp and oysters.

The three-masted, gaff-rigged lougre – or 'bisquine' in the Norman dialect – featured a large-barrelled hull designed to take a sizeable haul and was mainly used in Normandy and the Pas-de-Calais during the 19th century.

Daubigny's painting, signed and titled Loading a 'lougre' at low tide, Normandy, was shown at the Paris Salon in 1875 – the same year the artist stood in for his elderly father, the well-known Barbizon painter Charles-François Daubigny, as one of the pallbearers at Camille Corot's funeral.

The picture is one of the highlights in a selling exhibition of marine art on the north coast of Norfolk by London gallery John Mitchell Fine Paintings. Call of the Sea – Four Centuries of Marine Painting, which runs until August 26 at The Boathouse in Burnham Overy Staithe, features a selection of works of ships, seascapes and maritime life, from British 18th century watercolours to French Impressionist seascapes.

As well as Daubigny, artists include Willem van de Velde, Samuel Atkins, Robert and John Cleveley, Dominic Serres, Julius Caesar Ibbetson and Martinus Schouman, with prices ranging from £950-22,500.

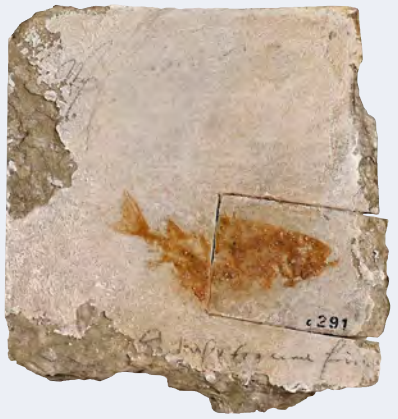
The web shop window

Thousands of items are available to buy from dealers online. Here we pick out one that caught our eye this week.



It looks like the preserved impression of a fish that lived many millennia ago, but this 'fossil' is anything but.

Intricately made from wax and a composite board of compressed card, PVA and wood filler, the 13in (34cm) square piece is the work of Malcolm Whittaker (b.1937) and forms part of the artist's 2007 Collection series.

Whittaker says the series was inspired by both "man's desire….to collect, own, wrap, box, identify and catalogue" and the fossils, insects, animals and rocks he found in the Natural History Museum.

The piece shown here is priced at £750 from art dealer Claire Brown who has dedicated her latest catalogue, Fragments of Time and Place, to Whittaker's works.

Tech firm pledges to make e-commerce easier

A new e-commerce management system designed to help dealers manage their stock listings across a range of online marketplaces has been hailed as a game-changer for the trade by its creators.

The Ronati eCommerce Manager, the inaugural product from technology firm Ronati, promises to unshackle art and antiques dealers from their keyboards with one-stop software created to "simplify, automate and accelerate" the process of selling antiques online.

The company said: "Online marketplaces find the number one reason dealers do not want to join their platform is because they simply can't manage their stock on 'yet another marketplace'. The Ronati eCommerce Manager solves this issue for both the dealer and the marketplaces."

It added: "Success finding buyers online and offline is a direct result of the number of locations buyers can find a dealer. No dealer can rely on a single fair to produce the sales needed in a year, and online is no different. If a dealer does not list their stock where qualified buyers shop, the first opportunity for connection is lost."

Ronati has signed up dealers in the UK and North America and established partnerships with LAPADA, CINOA, AADLA, Olympia Art & Antiques Fairs and Dolphin Promotions among others.

Ronati, which was founded in the US by CEO Stacey Tiverton in 2017, launched its UK operation last month with dealer and industry figure Mark Hill (inset) appointed as managing director.

Portraitist and prominent ancestor given joint show

London portrait agency Fine Art Commissions is celebrating the work of British war artist and society portraitist Simon Elwes (1902-75) and his great, great nephew Jamie Coreth (b.1989) with a new exhibition.

Elwes & Coreth: Masters of Portraiture features over 20 works and runs from September 21-October 8 at the agency's St James's gallery in Ryder Street.

All painted over the past 100 years, subjects range from war heroes and artists to prominent social figures including members of the British royal family.

While the portraits by Elwes are all loaned from private collections including from the painter's family, works by Coreth are available to buy including this self-portrait of the artist with a bust, right, priced at £18,000.

"It is a huge thrill and honour to be able to hold an exhibition of these two leaders in portraiture and to be able to see how Jamie has been inspired by his great, great uncle Simon," said the gallery's Sam Parker Bowles, who has curated the exhibition.

5 Questions

Oli Barling began as a collector and is now a dealer from his base in Leamington Spa, Warwickshire, and trades as Boula. He focuses on 18th to 20th century decorative antiques, rustic furnishings, curios and folk art from the UK and across Europe.

He takes part in his first event on Saturday, August 28, organised by LAPADA members and dealers Rebecca and Jonny Ralfe of Ralfes Yard. Five dealers are taking part at the one-day event at Upton Noble, Somerset. The other exhibitors are JMR Antiques, Mary Hossack Antiques, Wilkie Antiques and organiser Ralfes Yard.

1 How do you define the field you trade in?

I recently turned collecting into dealing and my passions lie across English regional furniture, ceramics and country furnishings. I live with a lot of what I buy until it moves on. If it's good enough for home then it'll end up on the website.

2 What is one little known fact about your field? Or dealing in general?

I wouldn't say it's a little-known fact but not being able to switch off is real. The world of antiques offers limitless amounts of information and once the ball is rolling, you're gone.

3 One great discovery you've made?

Two Windsor chairs [pictured below] that were highly likely fashioned by a group of subcontracted Windsor chair makers following a strict design for Gillows. They will be coming with me to the Ralfes Yard sale [mentioned above].

4 What is encouraging about the art and antiques market this year?

The resolute nature of the trade during a very strange time. Resourcefulness is exciting.

5 Real ale or espresso martini?

Real ale is a safer bet.

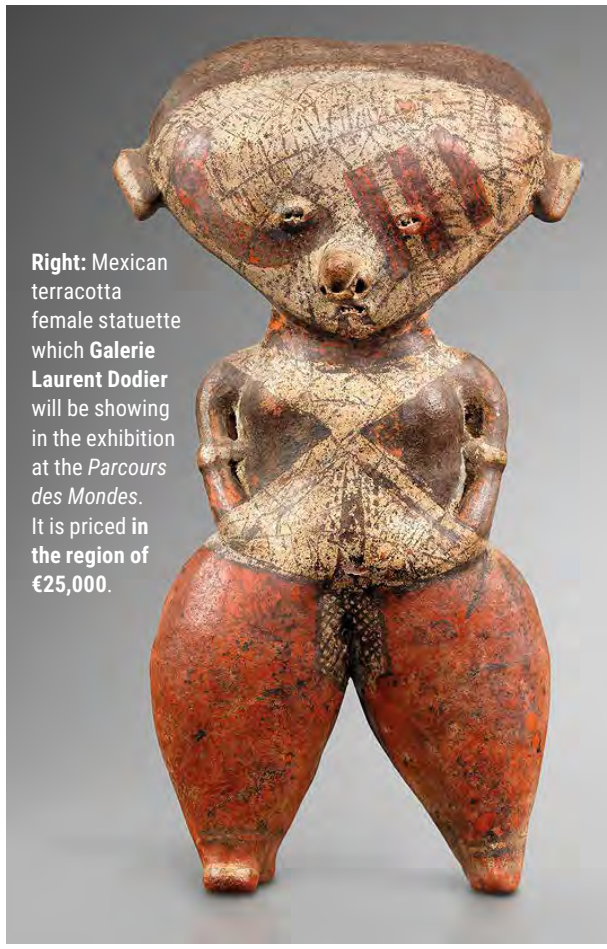
The network of small streets in the left bank area of Saint Germain des Prés of Paris will once again host a series of gallery exhibitions, Anne Crane reports as part of a special tribal art review also including a London online fair and upcoming auctions



Right: Mexican terracotta female statuette which Galerie Laurent Dodier will be showing in the exhibition at the Parcours des Mondes. It is priced in the region of €25,000.

Parcours des Mondes, Paris' major celebration of tribal art from around the world, stages its 20th anniversary edition this year from September 7-12, staged as usual in the galleries located in the city's Saint Germain des Près quarter.

The network of small streets in this left bank area is packed with art and antiques galleries and exhibitors. They are a mix of resident tribal art dealers and those from elsewhere who take space in some of the other galleries in this location.

This year over 40 dealers will be exhibiting at the Parcours. Although the list includes participants from Spain, Italy, Switzerland, the Netherlands and the US, ongoing Covid-19 restrictions have placed some limits on the international exhibitor roster.

While French, particularly Parisian, dealers have always been a mainstay, this year they are more dominant, followed by participants from nearby Brussels, another major centre for tribal art.

Global coverage

The nature of the works on show, however, is truly global – spanning Africa, the Americas (North and South), Asia and the Pacific regions. Masks and carvings from Papua New Guinea will be rubbing shoulders with fetish figures from the Congo, works from the Arctic regions, terracotta figures from Venezuela, carved stone sculpture from Gandhara as well as Contemporary art from Africa.

Some of the galleries will be mounting themed displays, others focus on works from a particular continent and, as in recent years, the selection also incorporates an element of Asian artefacts and antiquities.

A selection of highlights is pictured here. ■

parcours-des-mondes.com

Right: this 16 x 4¼in (41 x 11cm) green argillite Melanesian axe blade from the Highlands, Papua New Guinea, dating from the 19th century or earlier, is one of the pieces that Anthony Meyer will show at Parcours Des Mondes.

Dealer celebrates stone fascination

"I have always been interested in stone," says dealer Anthony Meyer. An enthusiasm that was initiated at a young age through his father's fascination with semi-precious and precious stones, Meyer continued his passion for the subject as an adult. "I mainly collected Oceanian axe blades which nobody was interested in at the beginning of the 1980s."

For this year's Parcours des Mondes, Meyer, who has a gallery on the rue des Beaux Arts, is putting on an exhibition titled Lithique presenting over 200 stone objects from his ongoing 40 years of collecting.

The ensemble will cover a large part of the world's art history in cultural, temporal and geographic terms, spanning pieces from the Paleolithic period through to a piece by a contemporary sculptor.

Many of the items are functional such as axe and adze blades, like the Melanesian example pictured here, through knives, spear and arrow points to others that are symbolic and ceremonial.

There is an equally broad price range with pieces starting at €100 and rising to €100,000 and beyond. The exhibition will continue until October 2.

Discovered in the ice

Rêves Arctiques (Arctic Dreams) is the title of the themed exhibition that Galerie Flak on the rue des Beaux Arts is presenting for the 20th edition of Parcours des Mondes.

This is a selection that focuses on objects from the cultures of the 'Great North' with prices ranging from €1000 to over €200,000.

One of the highlights will be this archaic Eskimo Okvik sculpted head made from walrus ivory.

The 3in (8cm) high piece, which is dated to 200BC-100AD, was excavated from the permafrost on Punuk Island, Alaska, in 2012.

It featured in a sale at Bonhams San Francisco the following year and since then has passed through specialist dealers Donald Ellis and David Ghezelbash, from whom it was acquired in 2014.

Double anniversary marked

Laurent Dodier is a longstanding exhibitor at Parcours des Mondes.

This year the dealer from Avranches in Normandy will be mounting an exhibition celebrating a double anniversary: 20 years of the Parcours and 60 years of trading for the gallery started by his father Philippe in 1961.

He will be featuring works from Africa, America and Oceania and among the highlights will be an 18in (47cm) high 19th century carved wooden male figure from the Fang-Betsi people in what is now Gabon.

This is a piece that passed through the gallery back in the time of Laurent's father Philippe in 1968 and prior to that was with the dealer Jacques Kerchache.

Figures such as these would have been placed on the reliquary casket containing the remains of the skulls of ancestors. It is priced in the region of €400,000.

Dodier will also be showing a 9¼in (24.5cm) meso-American, Chinesco painted terracotta figure of a standing woman decorated with geometric motifs. It comes from the Pacific coastal culture, state of Nayarit, Mexico, dates from c.100BC/AD and was formerly in the collection of the French poet and Surrealist Paul Eluard. It is priced in the region of €25,000.

Dodier's Parcours exhibition will be on show at the Galerie Didier Luttenbacher on the rue des Beaux-Arts.

Heads up for Timoto-Cuica

For its Parcours exhibition the Galerie Serge Schoffel from Brussels will be focusing on the Timoto-Cuica, a culture that flourished between 800-1200AD in the area that is now the Trujillo province in Venezuela.

The artworks from this culture include figures with heads that extend outwards on both sides and bodies covered by complex painted ritual decoration.

The painted terracotta seated anthropomorphic example pictured here, which dates from c.1300-1500AD, was formerly part of the Barbier-Mueller collection in Geneva and featured in Sotheby's sale of the collection in 2013.

The 7½in (19cm) high figure is priced at €38,000 in the Galerie Schoffel exhibition which takes place in the Galerie Pascal Lansberg on the rue de Seine.

Distinctive figures from the Congo

Figures from the region that is now the Democratic Republic of the Congo will be the subject of the themed exhibition Kongo that Galerie Lucas Ratton on the rue Bonaparte will be putting on for Parcours des Mondes.

The gallery will feature around 50 of these distinctive carved statues which will be exhibited next to paintings by the French artist Pierre Soulages.

Among the highlights of the show will be this rare example of a Nkissi figure from the Yombe tribe. It is made from wood with additions of basketry, horn, leather, resin/wax, shell, glass and a mirror, dates from the 19th century and stands 10¼in (26cm) high.

Such power figures were created to contain mystical forces and were worshipped by their holder or a specialist called nganga to appease the spirits that ruled the world.

Some, like these, feature one or more element of medicinal matter which house the vital essence of the statuette. Here these materials are hidden behind the glass mirror and in the hairstyle. It is rare for such figures to have survived without being dispossessed of their ritual matter.

This example was collected c.1901-2 and kept in the same family. It is priced at around €100,000 in the Kongo exhibition.

London fair will run as a virtual event

Tribal Art London (TAL), the UK's main fair dedicated to the collecting field, will be a virtual event this year.

Rather than a physical presence at the Mall Galleries, which has been its home since 2014, exhibitors will be showcasing the works they have for sale on the TAL website.

The virtual fair opens on September 22 and runs until September 26.

TAL is known for offering a wide mix of global ethnographic arts in terms of geography and values with prices ranging from the low hundreds to over £20,000.

For its first online staging it has invited dealers from round the world to participate. Over 20 have already confirmed including tribal specialists from the US, the Netherlands, Belgium and Australia. New exhibitors this year include Tod Barlin of Oceanic Arts Australia in Sydney and Erick Farrow and Andres Morago both from San Francisco.

Alongside the items for sale a series of lectures will also run virtually through the duration of the fair.

1. This carved female figure from the Chokwe culture in Angola, from a private collection in France, is one of the pieces that London dealer Bryan Reeves will be presenting for Tribal Art London. The standing figure, which is thought to date from the 1930s and features an elaborate cross-hatched coiffure, is priced at £2800.

2. Ian Shaw from Glasgow is presenting a selection of Ghanian textiles that will include this rare Ewe Kente from c.1930. It measures 9ft 7in x 6ft (2.93 x 1.83m), features many detailed floating figures and is available for £1800.

3. Among the works that Finette Lemaire from the Netherlands is showing is this Asmat Sago dish from Papua New Guinea made by Censimipic that was collected in situ between 1956-60. Made to contain the daily meal of roasted sago dough, these elongated bowls are reminiscent of small canoes with carved prows. Traditional bowls also feature an ancestral head that faces the interior of the bowl so that the faces can be seen when consuming food. It is priced at €1750.

Worldwide works amassed by the Wrights for sale

Sotheby's New York is holding an online auction from September 7-13 featuring 50 examples of sculpture from across the world's continents selected from the longstanding collection of Martin and Faith-Dorian Wright.

The selected pieces span works at all price points from the Northwest Coast of North America; sub-Saharan Africa, the Pacific Islands and Australia.

They were acquired by the Wrights in the 1960s-70s from specialist ethnographic art dealers as well as at auctions at Sotheby Parke-Bernet.

1. Among the pieces from Northwest America is this 19in (48cm) high Kwakwaka'wakw mask from British Columbia which the Wrights acquired around the 1970s. It has an estimate of $15,000-25,000.

2. African works include this Yaka Zoomorphic neckrest from what is now the Democratic Republic of the Congo. Formerly in the Parisian collections of Charles Vignier and Louis Carré, the 7½in (19cm) long neckrest featured in the key exhibition African Negro Art held in 1935 at the Museum of Modern Art in New York. The guide in Sotheby's sale is $25,000-35,000.

3.The Oceanic items feature this 2ft 2in (86cm) high mask from the Ramu River Delta, East Sepik Province of Papua New Guinea which the Wrights acquired in 1966 from the American dealer John J Klejman. It has an estimate of $50,000-70,000.

Go native the modern way

Bonhams is holding a sale of Modern Native American Art in Los Angeles on August 30 that includes the collection of Canadian Inuit sculpture assembled by Wendy and Dr Les Fisher of Chicago.

The collection, which Dr Fisher – renowned director of the Lincoln Park Zoo and a well-known Chicago personality – and his late wife Wendy amassed together throughout their lives, features 98 lots of primarily Inuit art, including sculptures, prints, and one original drawing. The works mainly centre on animals and human-animal transformations as subject matter.

Among the pieces offered is The Caribou Hunter by Judas Ullulaq (1937-99), an 18½in (47cm) high signed sculpture in carved stone with bone elements.

Estimate $15,000-20,000.

International Auction Calendar 24 August - 30 September

International Sales

Every care is taken in compiling this calendar.

Due to current market conditions caused by Covid-19, a number of the auctions listed here may be held as live online-only sales. Such auctions will typically be held behind closed doors, are not open to members of the public for bidding in the room and can be operated by the auctioneer remotely. Bidding takes place online and may also be available on the phone or on commission.

Other sales listed may be held as live sales whereby some bidders are allowed in the room, subject to local market social distancing and hygiene rules. Bidding will also typically be available online, on the phone and on commission.

In all cases you should check with the auction house directly to understand the conditions under which the auction is taking place, including the storage arrangements or delivery options that are currently available.

Please note that social distancing measures and any restrictions on auction house openings vary from country to country.

Auction houses may also be holding timed sales – refer to their websites for details.

Use our online calendar to check for updates. Information accurate at time of going to press (2pm Friday August 20). Antiques Trade Gazette cannot accept responsibility for errors or omissions.

Auctioneers are requested to contact us with details of their sales and inform us of any changes.

ATG 50th anniversary special edition:
Issue 2509

Antiques Trade Gazette celebrates its 50th anniversary with a special edition

Published with a cover date of September 18 2021, exactly 50 years to the day after the first issue

The special edition contents will include:

- A unique four-page high quality cover will wrap the special edition, providing a one-off opportunity to take advertising on the inside front, outside back and inside back cover
- 50 years of art and antiques: a year-by-year look at the headlines and objects that shaped half a century of our trade
- Readers' recollections: subscribers share their memories of the role ATG has played in shaping the market
- Where are they now? What became of the people and companies that appeared in issue one?

Bonus distribution:

Copies of issue 2509 to be distributed to visitors and dealers at The Chelsea Antiques Fair, September 20-26

COPY DEADLINE Wednesday 8 September

International Fairs

This listing of dates is a sample of forthcoming art and antiques fairs taking place around the world during the summer. For dates of fairs and markets in the UK, see pages 57-59.

Every care is taken in compiling this calendar.

Coronavirus restrictions vary by country and sometimes by locality and are subject to regular reviews and changes. Therefore the dates listed here are also subject to change. Some fairs may be timed entry events where you must pre-book a ticket with an allocated time slot, others may not be.

As ever, readers are advised to check with the fair or event concerned before travelling any distance to understand the conditions under which the event is taking place - including Covid-19 requirements such as face masks and social distancing - and to check for any alterations or last-minute cancellations.

Information accurate at time of going to press (2pm Friday August 20). Antiques Trade Gazette cannot accept responsibility for errors, omissions or changes that occur after publication.

Fair organisers are requested to inform us of any changes so that the accuracy of the calendar can be maintained.

Contact us at:
calendar@antiquestradegazette.com.

Auction Calendar 25 August - 7 September

The original and authoritative sales listing

This is a calendar of art, antiques and general auctions taking place in the UK and Ireland over the next two weeks.

Due to current market conditions caused by Covid-19, readers should expect that some of the live auctions listed here will be held as live online only sales.

Such auctions take place behind closed doors and are not open to members of the public for bidding in the room. Bidding takes place online and is also usually available on the phone or on commission.

Readers should bear in mind that regulations and guidelines differ across each of the devolved nations of the UK and are also different in the Republic of Ireland. They are also subject to change at short notice.

Some auction houses may admit people to their premises to bid in the room though they are not required to do so and you may need to book a place in advance. A number of them may continue with live online only sales for some time.

In all cases you should check with the auction house directly to understand the conditions under which the auction is taking place, including storage arrangements or delivery and collection options that are currently available.

Our online calendar is updated throughout the week, check it regularly to ensure you have the latest information.

We are also listing timed auctions that are being held on thesaleroom.com

Information accurate at the time of going to press (2pm Friday August 20).

Auctioneers are requested to contact us with details of their sales and inform us of any changes.

Artist's Resale Right

Advertisements in Antiques Trade Gazette may mention Artist's Resale Right (ARR). Please refer to the information below for details.

Living artists and the descendants of artists deceased within the last 70 years are entitled to receive a resale royalty each time their work is bought. The right applies only when the sale price reaches or exceeds the sterling equivalent of €1,000 and is calculated on a sliding scale.

Please note ARR is calculated in euros.
Auctioneers will apply current exchange rates.

Royalty	Resale price
4%	up to €50,000
3%	between €50,000.01 and €200,000
1%	between €200,000.01 and €350,000
0.5%	between €350,000.01 and €500,000
0.25%	in excess of €500,000

Royalties are also capped so that the total amount of the royalty paid for any single sale of a work cannot exceed €12,500. ARR is exempt of VAT.

Readers should expect that some of the live sales listed in this calendar will be held as live online only events whereby there is no bidding in person. Check with the auction house for details.

Inside track on Kempton Park

Sunbury Antiques announces that the main grandstand will be reopening for indoor trading

by Joan Porter

"I think it's the tonic that everyone needed at the end of a tough and testing 18 months," says Sunbury Antiques' Edward Cruttenden.

"With the reopening of the main grandstand at Kempton Park for our antiques market on September 14 it's a really positive step towards normality," he said.

Sunbury Antiques' last Tuesday market at the racecourse when the main grandstand area was open was on March 10 last year. The long-awaited return to indoor trading at the course is finally over.

The organiser has rejigged the floor plan to create wider thoroughfares throughout the inside areas which means that all the inside areas will be down around 20% across the board. This translates at around 300 indoor pitches – which are nearly fully booked for September 14.

Cruttenden adds: "We will still have to operate a staggered admission system but we have adapted the timings and will now revert back to free admission from 8am onwards with a £10 entry charge from 6.30-8am on the gate." ■

Left: the ATG is essential reading for this dealer at Sunbury Antiques' antiques market at Kempton Park Racecourse.

> I think it's the tonic everyone needed at the end of a tough and testing 18 months

Right: Andrew Parker and Mark Austick of Antique Guys have been dealing from the grandstand at Sunbury Antiques' Kempton Park Racecourse markets for 10 years selling a broad mix of pieces including tribal, militaria, watches and jewellery. It is the only fair they do, apart from specialist events, said Parker. The dealers' main speciality is ethnographica, which stems from Parker's nationality as a New Zealander and has led to his large personal collection of Maori, Kiwi and Polynesian pieces.

The dealers' stock includes this 19th century albumen print of the Maori chief Anehana which is priced at £2750.

Photographed by Elizabeth Pulman (1836-1900), originally from the village of Lymm in Cheshire, Pulman is regarded as the first female professional photographer in New Zealand, running a studio in Auckland with her husband George.

Clerkenwell in Covent Garden

London Fashion Week is back from September 17-21 – a mixture of digital and physical events including the British Fashion Council's famous shows at Somerset House.

Ahead of the buzzy week, where upcycled clothes will probably dominate many of the designers' agenda, the Clerkenwell Vintage Fashion Fair also returns – with safety measures – after an 18-month absence (see picture right from a fair back then). Despite the name, this in fact takes place in the Freemasons Hall, Covent Garden, on Saturday and Sunday, September 4-5,

The event's founder, Savitri Coleman, said: "We'll have 50 cherry-picked dealers offering vintage fashion, accessories, trimmings and textiles.

"On the make do and mend front, we have an on-the-spot alterations team to ensure your purchases fit like a glove."

In East Anglia....

Blackdog Events, based in the Suffolk town of Halesworth, organises successful outdoor brocantes in the sweeping grounds of two stately homes: Riddlesworth Hall at Diss in Norfolk and Glemham Hall, near Aldeburgh in Suffolk.

New to this line-up is the organisers' brocante at the Grade-II listed Woolverstone Hall, close to Ipswich, which will run on Sunday, August 29, instead of Blackdog's Halesworth antiques street fair which was cancelled due to the Covid-19 situation.

The Glemhall Hall event follows on Sunday, September 5, with 80-100 dealers spread out in parkland in front of the hall from where these two happy buyers pose with their purchases-to-go at a past event (above).

ablackdogevent.com

The monthly Norwich Brocante returns to St Andrews Hall, set in a medieval friary complex in the city centre, on Saturday, September 11, with 50 dealers selling a medley of china, small antiques, glass and vintage. Art is a good bet here too, say those in the know.

Fairs & Markets Calendar 25 August - 12 September

For a comprehensive and regularly updated listing please visit antiquestradegazette.com/calendar

Although lockdown rules have generally been eased and the fairs and markets sector is returning to business with encouraging levels of stands, visitors and sales, the dates listed here can still be subject to change.

Fair organisers are likely to have Covid-safe rules in place and will appreciate all visitors following them - Track and Trace may be mandatory for entry, for example, and you may be required or expected to wear a face mask indoors and use hand sanitiser.

Some fairs may be timed entry events where you must pre-book a ticket with an allocated time slot.

As ever, readers are advised to check with the fairor event concerned before travelling any distanceto understand the conditions under which the eventis taking place and to check for any alterations orlast-minute cancellations.

Information accurate at the time of going to press (2pm Friday August 20).

Fair organisers are requested to inform us of any changes so that the accuracy of the calendar can be maintained.

Timed auctions on thesaleroom.com

Bidding made easy

In a timed auction, there is no auctioneer taking bids from a live audience in a room. Instead, all the bidding takes place online.

Timed auctions have an end-time displayed on the lot page. You can bid at any point from when the auction opens to when it closes.

As a bidder, you can enter a max bid – the most you are willing to bid, using our set bidding increments and we do the rest. We will bid intelligently for you, bidding only enough for you to meet the reserve or stay in the lead.

Your max bid stays secret in our system. We won't share your maximum bid with the auctioneer, the seller or other bidders.

You'll see your 'current bid' when you log in and view the lot. If someone bids higher than your maximum, we will send you an 'outbid alert' via email, so you can decide whether to bid more.

If a bid is placed in the final few minutes before the auction closes for that lot, the time period will be extended by a number of minutes. The auction house can set the number of minutes, usually 10.

This is to stop 'sniping' – a practice used by bidders on some other websites whereby they rush to place bids in the last few seconds to prevent other bidders being able to respond before the auction closes.

Product Photographer

With the importance of the online bidding within the Auction Industry, never has photographs of items been more important. We are looking for a dynamic and flexible person to join our busy saleroom in the photography department. The ideal candidate will have had experience with product photography either in a auction environment or retail sector. A good understanding of lighting techniques and photograph software such as Photoshop and InDesign is necessary. The candidate must be able to work under pressure, be flexible around a busy auction schedule and take pride in their work and the finished product. The candidate will also be trained in other areas of the business, so a keenness to work in the auction industry is preferred.

Digital & Print Media

Over the last few years digital media has become more important to the auction industry, we now have an exciting vacancy in our business for a dynamic individual who would like to flourish in a digital department. The candidate will be responsible for all print and digital media tasks, including maintaining the company website, maintaining and creating interesting social media campaigns across all platforms of social media and seeking out new avenues. Candidates will also be responsible for all print advertising material and print catalogue creation. The successful candidate will need to have a good working knowledge of Photoshop and InDesign software, they must also have had experience using social media in a promotional manner. Candidates must be able to work under pressure and to tight deadlines and be flexible with working hours.

Auction House Assistant

We run a very busy and lively auction house. We are looking for an enthusiastic individual who wants to learn and progress in the auction business. The candidate will be working with all our specialists, and will need to assist them in both cataloguing, valuations, client liaison, auction day online bidding operating / clerking, post auction lot dispatch etc. The candidate will need to have good communication skills, written and spoken English, computer literate, full (clean) driving license, have a can do attitude and be able to think for themselves, being able to work to deadlines and under pressure is essential. This is an ideal position for any person currently doing a junior or porter position in an auction house that wants to take the next step in their auction career.

To apply for one of these positions, please send a CV and covering letter to Matthew Tredwen via email matthew.tredwen@candtauctions.co.uk or telephone 01233 510050

Obituary – Richard Patrick Tatham Came (1932-2021)

Richard was born on New Years' Eve 1932 in Kabale, the Uganda Protectorate, on the Belgian Congo border. His father was an engineer who worked for the Colonial Service. After schooling in Africa before and during the Second World War, he attended Haileybury School, near Hertford, a popular choice for children of employees of the Colonial Office.

This was followed by National Service in the North Staffordshire Regiment, under the command of Colonel John Perreau*. Perreau was a very good amateur silversmith and enthusiast and thus visited Richard at Sotheby's many years later.

Richard took a job at Sotheby's in 1956, joining the silver department run at that time by Fred Rose (1905-65) who in the early 1960s became ill with a heart condition.

Richard was suddenly pushed into a position of responsibility that was more than any young man starting out in their career could imagine. Fred's assistant was Maureen Cox (Maureen Cotton, as she was when she joined Sotheby's as a telephonist in 1935). She became assistant to Fred in the Second World War to help with cataloguing furniture and silver.

Under Maureen's careful tutorage Richard soon established himself as 'the silver department', being active in the landmark sale of the Berkeley Castle Dinner Service on July 16, 1960. This world record-breaking sale, of a remarkable Louis XV silver service by Jacques Roettiers, Paris, 1735-38, gave him the taste for the limelight that became the norm for Sotheby's (and Christie's) as collecting silver became an established field of activity in the post-war era.

Father figure

I joined Sotheby's some 10 years later on 26th September 1966. By 1967 when I was a trainee porter I became aware of Richard, who bowled up to me in the galleries one day, so full of life and cheer, and introduced himself at the same time as asking me who I was, where I was from etc... in a way that only Richard could!

Over the following 12 months he would greet me like the great friend and father figure that he remained, for the following 53 years. In early 1968 he offered me a position in the silver department and I snapped it up – who could resist working for a chap with such bonhomie?

Invariably when I got to the office at 8am I would be greeted by Richard in a white 'lab-coat' overall. He frequently got to work around 7am and started dictating catalogue entries to Maureen on the standard Sotheby office issue Remington Noiseless typewriter, each 'property for sale' requiring separate carbon copy sheets. There was a sale of 200-400 lots of silver every Thursday back then.

Richard became one of the most accomplished auctioneers at Sotheby's and would often be on the rostrum for a myriad of sales. He took to the rostrum numerous times for the famous Mentmore House sale. He was fast and eagle eyed, taking bids with the uttermost charm and grace.

In 1968 Richard presided over the sale of the Elizabethan Westwell Livery Pots that are now part of the permanent collections of the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths. They sold for £36,000 and the catalogue included a colour photograph of artistic design, much to the chagrin of parties interested in bidding for them.

In 1969 Richard and his family moved from Fulham to near Henley on Thames.

When living in London he would ride his 'bone-shaker' bike to the office at break-neck speed wearing pinstripe suit and bowler hat.

He became a bit of an icon in the West End and was occasionally photographed and interviewed for the glossies.

> Richard became one of the most accomplished auctioneers at Sotheby's and would often be on the rostrum for a myriad of sales

After moving to Oxfordshire Richard would commute from Shiplake and continued to jump on his bike at Paddington, which he chained to railings near the station overnight. This was a period when I got close-up knowledge as I rented the cottage that was part of the house he had bought. Ann and I were married from there and Richard stood in to give the father of the bride speech as Ann's father was indisposed.

Instrumental role

Richard had become one of the dozen partners of Sotheby's by 1964 having just turned 30, a position he held for another three decades.

He was instrumental with the other partners under the chairmanship of Peter Wilson in the rapid expansion of Sotheby's into worldwide sales at auction, starting in the mid 1960s with sales in New York affiliated (1964) with Parke-Bernet Galleries Inc. These were followed by regular sales in Europe at Monte Carlo, Geneva and other venues, most of which included silver.

He was very much involved when Sotheby's went public in the late 1970s and he was the first auctioneer to take a sale when the hated buyer's premium was imposed.

Life in Bond Street included much cementing of friendships and careers. Lunches would be taken in various places such as the Time-Life building canteen and local restaurants and then, in the 1970s, the Sotheby's boardroom in an elegantly decorated first-floor room overlooking St George's Street – lunches prepared for the directors on most days or else important collectors and vendors would be wined and dined to hopefully cement their loyalty! Wherever there was activity in Sotheby's, Richard could often be found presiding.

Fondly remembered

He became a Liveryman at the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths in 1978 and in the mid 1980s Richard stood back from the silver department to take on managerial and guardianship roles.

He also devoted time to his appointment to the Goldsmiths' Company Court of Assistants to which he was elected in 1988. He served as Prime Warden of the Company 2002-03.

Richard will be fondly remembered by a varied and wide number of people, all of whom he considered friends and companions – he will be sadly missed.

From Peter Waldron, author of the Price Guide to Antique Silver, 2nd Edition, Antique Collector's Club, Woodbridge, 1982 and Sotheby's employee 1966-2002, director and head of Sotheby's silver departments following Richard Came

 A strange crossing of the paths of Richard and I happened in 1959. My father was just getting over my mother having left the family home, I was 11 and my brother David 13. Father decided to take us south from our Lake District home to show us London. We travelled in his newly acquired car (nicknamed the 'tart-trap'), a bright red Singer Gazelle with go-faster side flash, to stay at the Cumberland Hotel, Marble Arch. It was then on to France and we drove to Lydd Airport where we boarded the car and ourselves on to a Silver City flight to Le Touquet. A night spent in Deauville and then on to Paris and Fontainebleau to stay with my uncle, Brigadier John Waldron, who was stationed there. House guests at the same time were Colonel John Perreau and his wife. My dad was a bit star-struck with Elizabeth Perreau!*

 whose opening gambit to Victor Rothschild, 3rd Baron Rothschild on their first meeting, when asked where he was educated, was "Borstal and Wormwood Scrubs"... he was one of few grammar school boys employed by Sotheby's at the time! Lord Rothschild was the one and same who loaned Mr Rose the money to buy his partnership in Sotheby's.*

* The Remington Noiseless, which was built like a tank and sounded a bit like a machine gun when typing at speed. Maureen's machine was inherited by John Culme who took it with him to Sotheby's Belgravia when established in 1970. John went to the trouble of discovering that it had been made in 1946.*

Obituary – Robin Butler (1943-2021)

Robin Noel Holman Butler was born on 26 April, 1943, to Marjorie Blanche (née Dunn) and (George) Noel Butler in Bristol. He moved to Honiton, in Devon, at the age of five with his parents and older brother, Roderick.

Following school at Allhallows, in Devon, in the early 1960s Robin took a job teaching English at a prep school near Chichester.

He then took a year out to go travelling with a friend through Europe and into Asia in a Land Rover, reaching India just as war broke out with Pakistan, curtailing the onward adventure as Brits were urged to leave India by air without delay (or PDQ, as Robin would say).

Family business

Robin joined the family business of G Noel Butler at Marwood House in Honiton in 1963 at a time when the antiques business was flourishing.

He was elected to the British Antique Dealers Association in 1970. His interest in wine accessories began in 1976 when he assembled a collection of pieces for an exhibition as part of the diamond jubilee celebrations of the BADA in 1978, held at his new premises, 8½ High Street, Honiton. Thus were sown the early seeds of what would become Butler's Antiques, which came into being with wine accessories his full-time occupation from 2004.

Robin's first book arose from his collaboration with TV personality Arthur Negus: The Arthur Negus Guide to English Furniture was published in 1978.

In the early 1980s Robin moved back to Bristol and opened an antiques shop in the city. He later moved across town to premises in Clifton. While in Bristol, he wrote The Book of Wine Antiques with Gillian Walkling. These books are the standard reference works on their subjects.

After a move to Suffolk and marriage to Carol in the early 2000's, Robin researched and wrote his third book, The Albert Collection, about a magnificent private collection of English domestic silver.

This was followed by Great British Wine Accessories 1550-1900 in 2009, an enlarged and updated version of his previous book on the subject.

Robin was an enthusiast and connoisseur, giving talks and lectures to interested groups in Britain and the US, including the Silver Society, The Furniture History Society, The Wine Label Circle, The Smithsonian Institution, NADFAS and local collectors' groups.

He appeared on TV shows, including Antiques Roadshow, Arthur Negus Enjoys and Collectors' Lot, and he once wrote specialist questions for an episode of Mastermind.

At various times he was a BADA council member, a Furniture History Society Council Member and a Honiton town councillor.

As a young man, Robin was a keen sportsman. He was a key member of the Sidmouth and Honiton hockey clubs, a fine tennis and squash player, and (mostly!) enjoyed his golf. He was a competent self-taught wood carver and turner, and a talented pianist.

Rumour has it he could ride a penny farthing, and he loved his motors too, once owning a bright orange Morgan Plus Four. The same subtle appreciation of colour also shone through in his snappy dress sense, which only added to his bon vivant persona.

More recently he was fully devoted to caring for his wife, Carol, who survives him.

Humphrey Butler
