Xuande mark and period cloisonné 'pomegranate' box and cover, £230,000 at Dreweatts (with label and marks shown below).

The £19 Chinese box now worth £230,000

The highlight of Dreweatts' Asian art sale on May 17-18 was this very rare Xuande (1426-35) mark and period cloisonné 'pomegranate' box and cover. Guided at £6000-10,000, it soared away to bring £230,000 (plus 25% buyer's premium).

It came from the collection of the late Major Edward Copleston Radcliffe (1898-1967), having been acquired (on commission by London dealership Bluetts) at Sotheby's in 1946 for £19. It is one of only five known examples that Dr Yingwen Tao, specialist in Chinese and Asian Art at Dreweatts, believes were made by the same craftsman for the emperor.

Gallery holds Giambologna extravaganza

by Roland Arkell

Stuart Lochhead Sculpture will offer a group of five Mannerist bronzes by Florentine sculptor Giambologna (1529-1608) and his pupils as part of the summer edition of London Art Week.

The Alchemist's Laboratory: Giambologna's Forge in Florence runs from June 30-July 7 at 35 Bury Street.

The five works on offer have been assembled over two decades by an American collector and will be offered together as a group.

They include some of Giambologna's most famous models: a lifetime cast of Striding Mars, c.1580; The Fowler (or Birdcatcher) and Cristo Morto, c.1580-1600, cast by Antonio Susini; Lion Attacking a Horse, c.1700, by Giovanni Battista Foggini; and Hercules and the Centaur, c.1710-20, by Giuseppe Piamontin.

The price of the group has not yet been disclosed.

WOOLLEY'S LIVE

'Earliest standard measure' is the weigh to go

by Roland Arkell

The Oak Interior sale at Bishop & Miller in Stowmarket on June 1-2 includes this 'important and exceptional' Edward IV bronze measure. It is thought to be the earliest Standard Measure extant.

The issuing of standard weights and measures has been a regular occurrence in the British Isles for more than 1000 years.

However, the earliest

English measures previously recorded date from the reign of Henry VII (1485-1509). Two, a Winchester gallon and a bushel, are in the collection of the Science Museum. The earliest measures previously available to commerce are the Elizabeth I standard measures, dated 1601, one of which sold at Bishop & Miller in February for £30,000 (plus 25% buyer's premium).

A key figure during the Wars of the Roses, Edward IV reigned twice from 1461-70 and 1473-83.

This ovoid measure with a D-shaped handle carries a band of Lombardic script reading Edward Rex Anglie (Edward King of England).

It is believed to be the object mentioned in the diaries of Caroline Lybbe Powys, c.1762, who, on a visit to Hardwick House, Oxfordshire, writes: "In a recess in the corridor leading to the breakfast room was found a bronze jug, inscribed Edward Rex Anglia."

"It is 7½in (19cm) high, 5¾in (14.5cm) at the base, with a straight handle of 4in (10cm). The measure holds exactly a gallon of wine. This was considered by General Conway and Lord Frederick Campbell, connoisseurs in antiquities, to be a standard measure of the reign of one of the Edwards."

Given the sum paid for the Elizabeth I measure earlier this year, the auction house believes it could bring £40,000-60,000.

Book, manuscript and Judaica record set in New York

by Alex Capon

Setting an auction record for any book, manuscript or item of Judaica, a work billed as the 'earliest and most complete Hebrew bible' in existence sold for $33.5m (£26.6m) at Sotheby's New York.

The Codex Sassoon – named after its most prominent modern owner, David Solomon Sassoon (1880-1942) – came to auction from the collection of Jacqui Safra and was estimated at $30m-50m. It was offered with a third-party guarantee, meaning it was always bound to sell at the auction on May 17.

With bidding from two parties on the phone, it sold to Alfred H Moses, a former US ambassador and president of the American Jewish Committee, who is giving it to the ANU Museum of the Jewish People in Tel Aviv, Israel.

Written on parchment in the late 9th or early 10th century, Codex Sassoon contains all 24 books of the Hebrew Bible – missing only 12 leaves – and precedes the earliest entirely complete Hebrew Bible, the Leningrad Codex, by nearly a century.

Splash out on a Klimt

Meanwhile, the latest Modern and Contemporary art auctions at Sotheby's, Christie's and Phillips in New York were something of a bump back to reality after the last two sales series posted the highest grossing totals on record.

The current series raised $1.71bn (£1.36bn) with one day sale still to run at the time of going to press.

This followed the November sales in this category in the Big Apple raising an all-time high of $3.23bn, boosted in no small part by the Paul Allen sale at Christie's, and the May 2022 series totalling $2.78bn, helped by a $170m (£136m) Andy Warhol silkscreen of Marilyn Monroe and the second tranche of the Macklowe collection at Sotheby's.

The top lot of the latest flagship fortnight came at Christie's 21st century evening sale on May 15 when a large Jean-Michel Basquiat (1960-88) mixed media on canvas titled El Gran Espectáculo (The Nile) sold at $58m to a phone bidder. It was estimated 'in excess of $45m' and carried a third-party guarantee as was the case with numerous works across the series.

Christie's 20th century evening sale the week before was led by a large Henri Rousseau (1844-1910) jungle scene that made a major record at $37.5m (£29.8m) – reported and pictured in News last week (ATG No 2593).

Sotheby's, meanwhile, offered a view of Austria's Lake Attersee by Gustav Klimt (1862-1918) at its Modern Evening sale on May 16.

Right: Insel im Attersee by Gustav Klimt, $46m (£36.5m) at Sotheby's.

Given an estimate 'in the region of $45m', it was knocked down at $46m (£36.5m) to a Japanese private collector on the phone.

Titled Insel im Attersee (Island in Attersee), the 3ft 4in (1.01m) square oil on canvas from c.1901-02 fetched the third-highest price for the artist at auction.

Among the high points of the auction was a record for Wilhelm Hammershøi (1864-1916) when Interior. The Music Room, Strandgade 30 was knocked down at $7.6m (£6.03m).

Appearing at auction for the first time in almost 80 years, it surpassed a $3m-5m estimate and was acquired by an American museum.

Phillips' sales were led by Banksy's Banksquiat. Boy and Dog in Stop and Search which sold at $8.1m (est: $8m-12m) to a phone bidder.

£1 = $1.26

Debut sale boosted by Egyptian collection

by Alex Capon

A group of 25 works by Egyptian artists from the collection of the late Dr Mohammed Said Farsi, an influential civic leader in Saudi Arabia, drew notable interest at the inaugural sale of Modern & Contemporary African and Middle Eastern art staged by Olympia Auctions (25% buyer's premium).

All but two of the lots sold at the May 11 sale in west London for a combined £190,375 including premium.

Farsi, who died aged 82 in 2019 at his home in Monaco, had lived in Alexandria as a young man, training as an architect.

He returned to Saudi Arabia in the early 1960s and later entered government service before becoming mayor of Jeddah in 1972.

Overseeing huge developments, including a five-fold increase in the city's population, he is widely considered the father of modern Jeddah.

A collector of both Islamic and Western art, he was an important figure in the development of Middle Eastern visual arts and cultural institutions.

Egyptian art formed a prominent part of his personal collection and here works by the likes of Hamed Nada (1924-1990), Ragheb Ayad (1892-1982) and Abdel Hadi Al Gazzar (1925-66) all performed well.

Four pictures by Ragheb Ayad all surpassed predictions, including a watercolour titled Villagers Relaxing from c.1959 that overshot a £3500-5500 estimate and was knocked also drew strong competition, surpassing a £1000-1500 pitch and being knocked down at £16,000. It was also bought by an Egyptian private collector.

Interest came from all over the world, in particular Egypt, the UAE, Saudi Arabia and the UK.

The sale was run by specialist Janet Rady who joined Olympia Auctions in January this year.

For a special report on Post-war and Contemporary art, including works by overseas artists selling at UK auctions, see pages 16-24.

down to an Egyptian private collector at £20,000. The price was the fourth highest for the artist at auction, according to Artprice.com.

A pastel on paper by Hamed Nada titled The African Wizard

TEFAF NY highlights

An Egyptian polychrome sarcophagus panel from the Late Dynastic Period was one of the highlight sales at the recent TEFAF New York.

Running from May 12-16, the fair brought together modern, contemporary and ancient art. The panel, which sold from the stand of London gallery Charles Ede, was priced at $175,000.

Among the other sales of note was an Alexander Calder standing mobile which went from White Cube for $1.1m, a 1949 Dubuffet drawing from the stand of Applicat-Prazan and a painting by Verena Loewensberg (1912-86) sold by The Mayor Gallery to a US collector.

More than 90 museums and institutions were recorded among the fair visitors.

Xuande box takes £230,000

"There is every indication that all five were made in the same imperial workshop as crucially all are doubly marked with an incised Xuande six-character reign mark on the underside of the box and the interior of the cover.

"They also all have similar designs and are uniform in size [5in/12cm in diameter]."

Dreweatts found the piece among other Chinese works of art still displayed in a cabinet in the attic of a family home, as they had been when Radcliffe died in 1967.

Prior to the sale Dreweatts conceded the estimate – set when the box was assumed to be a later Ming copy – was "now looking extremely modest, even given the slightly damaged condition".

Bidding on the lot was confined to those in the room and on nine phones, with the box selling to a private collector in Hong Kong.

Mark Newstead, director of Asian ceramics and works of art at Dreweatts, said: "The Xuande mark is one of the most copied marks of all time. Literally 99.9% of pieces are later copies.

"I assumed the box was made in the 16th or early 17th century and it was only when we were able to compare it with the [grapes' pattern box at the National Trust property] Fenton House that we started to believe it could be a 'lost' example of this rare group."

The making of cloisonné enamel in the early Ming period was strictly regulated by palace eunuchs, who operated under the auspices of the Yuyongjian, a sub-division of the Neifu (Inner Treasury) responsible for supplies to the imperial household.

Pick of the week

Bread and salt charger is welcomed on second visit

It is traditional in Russia for important, respected or admired guests to be greeted with an offering of bread and salt.

The tradition gave rise to the Russian word khlebosolny (bread-salty) to express hospitality and the greeting Khleb da sol (bread and salt) that expresses good wishes to the host and their household.

With the visit of the tsar, it became commonplace for the humble foodstuffs to be offered on a specially carved presentation platter.

These bread dishes were displayed in the Winter Palace and the Kremlin, with more than 70 kept in the Alexander Palace in Tsarskoe Selo.

Most of these were dispersed – typically sold to Western dealers in return for hard currency – during the Soviet era and occasionally appear for sale in the US and the UK.

The example pictured here is competently carved with the imperial double-headed eagle and set with silver gilt folkloric roundels and the enamelled coat of arms of the city of Tula on the banks of the Upa river.

The inscription references the presentation of bread and salt to Nicholas II 'from the loyal peasants of Tula' in November 21, 1914. At the time, when Russia was at war with Germany, the tsar was undertaking a royal progress to the regions. Tula, a city synonymous with metalworking, was a centre for munitions and armaments manufacture.

The dish came for sale at Moore Allen & Innocent in Cirencester from a local home with a guide of just £30-50. It had little in the way of provenance but had been owned by the vendor's late husband for many years.

Remarkably, when offered for sale in April it had failed to sell but on May 10 the reaction was rather different. This time, helped by a range of images, it was spotted by a number of knowledgeable buyers.

On the rostrum at the time was saleroom manager Lucy Rowe, who was delighted to conduct the best bidding battle of her career as it sold to an online bidder from eastern Europe for £15,000 (plus 21% buyer's premium).

Sheffield museum targeted by thieves

Police in Sheffield are appealing for information after a burglary at Kelham Island Museum in the early hours of Sunday, April 14.

Display cases were smashed and 12 objects relating to metalworking in the city, including pieces of Georgian silver on loan from Sheffield Assay Office, were taken.

Many of the pieces are easily identifiable including a coffee pot by Matthew Fenton, Richard Creswick and William Watson, Sheffield, 1773, and a late 19th century exhibition knife with 104 blades by Greenhough.

Anyone with information should call 101 quoting incident number 193 of May 14, 2023.

Kelham Island Museum was opened in 1982 to house objects representing Sheffield's industrial story.

PBFA launches a new Oxford fair

The Provincial Booksellers Fairs Association (PBFA) has announced a new event, a UK Fine Press Fair, to run in Oxford.

It runs on December 9-10 at the Oxford University Examination Schools.

Exhibitors are members of the Fine Press Book Association (FPBA), which celebrates and promotes beautiful books and printing skills. Formed in 1998, the FPBA also issues the journal Parenthesis.

The announcement comes as the PBFA stages its annual London flagship fair this week from May 20-21.

However, there are several alterations to be noted for the coming months concerning book events.

The Lincoln fair in June has been cancelled due to over-running refurbishment works at the venue. A St Ives fair set for September has also been cancelled.

Two more fairs have been postponed: Abergavenny, set to run in June will now take place on October 7 and Dublin, planned for October 28-29, has been moved to November 25-26.

A string of new events is still taking place including Brockholes Preston Premier Fair (July 7-8), Hay-on-Wye (July 22) and Oxford (October 21).

Family jailed for Dresden theft

The Dresden state court has convicted five men over the theft of 18th century jewels from then city's Green Vault

Museum in 2019. After a 47-day trial that heard evidence from over 100 witnesses, the men – all members of the same family – were given prison sentences of between four and six years. One defendant was acquitted.

On November 25, 2019, 21 objects with a total insured value of at least €113m (£98m) were stolen from the Green Vault treasury.

The thieves were caught several months later in raids in Berlin.

In January this year a plea bargain agreement was reached with the defence after part of the hoard was returned.

However, the Saxon White, a 49ct diamond, and a diamond necklace and a bow-shaped stomacher worn by Queen Amalie August of Bavaria are still missing.

Rembrandt pair of portraits emerge

Christie's is to offer the last known pair of portraits by Rembrandt in private hands as part of its Old Master sale on July 6.

The small-scale oils of Jan Willemsz van der Pluym (c.1565-1644) and Jaapgen Carels (1565-1640), both signed and dated 1635, portray two elderly relatives of the artist.

The portraits have a virtually unbroken line of provenance.

They remained in the family of the sitters until they were sold in 1760 and were bought at Christie's by the current owner's family in 1824 but had remained completely unknown to scholars ever since.

They return to Christie's with a guide of £5m-8m after analysis at the Rijksmuseum.

Henry Pettifer at Christie's called it "one of the most exciting discoveries we have made in the Old Masters field in recent years".

The Van der Pluym were a prominent family in Leiden and acquired a garden next to that owned by Rembrandt's mother.

Their grandson Karel van der Pluym, an artist, is thought to have trained with Rembrandt.

Martinware birds flock to Salisbury

Salisbury auction house Woolley & Wallis is holding a Martin Brothers anniversary exhibition from June 13-22.

It is 150 years since the inauguration of the Martin Brothers pottery and a century since the death of modeller Robert Wallace Martin.

Curated by Woolley & Wallis specialist Michael Jeffery, the show at the Castle Gate rooms will feature around 170 exhibits, including a total of 34 of the famous Wally birds.

All of the pieces have been loaned from collections within the UK. Some have not been seen since the seminal Richard Dennis exhibition held at Sotheby's Belgravia in 1978.

The illustrated catalogue includes an introduction by Malcolm Haslem.

Cotswolds auction house Kinghams held a similar exhibition of approximately 100 pieces in March.

Garden design Versailles style

Casts of garden urns designed for Louis XIV's magnificent palace are offered in Oxfordshire

by Terence Ryle

In a style admired in the gardens at Versailles and at a House & Garden sale in Abingdon, a pair of urns after those created for Louis XIV's great project led the field at Mallams (25% buyer's premium).

Delicately cast, as any bronze to a design by Claude Ballin (1615-78) merits, the 2ft 4in (71cm) high urns followed the originals closely. They may have dated from the late 18th century.

One had some minor holes and the other some old repairs, losses and restoration.

Both had the desirable patina resulting from years outdoors and, against a £2000-4000 estimate, sold to a UK private buyer against Continental interest at £18,000.

Sit like an Egyptian

The urns were just one of a number of estimate-eclipsing offerings at the April 3-4 auction.

Another garden option was a pair of c.1870 majolica 'Egyptian Revival' garden seats on stands.

The model of a seated Egyptian girl with lilies and cobras is among the best-known majolica formed by the Stoke manufacturer Brown-Westhead, Moore & Co and examples brought enormous sums when the collecting market was at its height.

This pair, with only minor chips to the base to count against them, went at £8000, ten times the lower estimate.

Also among the ceramics were two Alexander II period military plates by the Imperial Porcelain Factory, St Petersburg, painted with central roundels of soldiers and bearing the Imperial double-headed eagle crest.

Sanctions ruled out direct trade with Russia but, pitched at £1000-2000, they sold online to a Continental bidder at £11,000.

Most of the rugs sold in line with three-figure estimates but two stood out. Going 20 times above expectations to the UK trade at £7800, a faded and stained 14ft 4in x 11ft (4.37 x 3.38m) Heritz carpet featured a blue ground, floral ornament to the centre and multi-banded border.

A 13ft 8in x 20ft 4in (4.15 x 6.2m) Persian light brown carpet had

1. 18th or 19th century bronze urns after Ballin, £18,000 at Mallams Abingdon.

2. Queen Anne wall mirror, £12,000.

3. St Petersburg 'military' plates, £11,000.

4. 'Egyptian Revival' majolica garden seats, £8000.

Both urns had the desirable patina resulting from years outdoors extensive wear, damage to the edges and discolouration but, estimated at £800-1200, made £8000 online.

Most of the 18th and 19th century furniture reflected the current market, selling in three figures, but some demolished estimates.

The selection was led by a 10ft (3.05m) tall Queen Anne wall mirror with gilded and decorative curved edging and bordered glass.

It needed a little restoration to peeling gilt but sold to a UK private buyer at a 10-times-estimate £12,000.

An early 18th century laburnum oyster-veneered chest on stand, with later handles and feet and cut-down stand, went to a UK private at a 10-times estimate £3400; a Victorian gothic oak partners' desk with a large crack to the back quadrupled expectations at £2300 and a 19th century French parquetry inlaid with brass galleried top and tambour front went back to the Continent with a private internet bid of £2400 against a £200-400 guide.

The world of Howard

Howard & Sons chairs and sofas operate in a market of their own.

The five examples at Abingdon were all labelled Howard & Sons Limited, 31 Old Burlington Street London, dating them to between 1924 – when Lenygon & Morant took over the business – and 1954 when it moved to South Audley Steet.

Four of the five got away, the best-seller at £3000 being an armchair with scrolling arms, square tapering hardwood legs and brass castors. ■

Cumbrian house full of Mouseman

The 33 pieces of 'Mouseman' furniture on offer at Carlisle auction house Thomson Roddick (20% buyer's premium) all came from a Cumbrian Georgian country house where they had been since at least before 1950.

Many were probably pre-war pieces, made during the lifetime of Robert Thompson (1876-1955) himself. All sold above estimates to total £77,000.

Top-seller was a 5ft 5in (1.65m) wide oak sideboard top with scroll incised corners above a pair of Gothic carved doors with iron latches and hinges and central carved blind panel.

Estimated at £3000, it sold to a Northern specialist dealer at £11,000.

A pair of 2ft 2in (66cm) wide easy chairs, with adjustable backs and panelled sides each with an iron

1. Mouseman sideboard, £11,000 at Thomson Roddick.

2. Mouseman easy chairs, £10,500.

3. Coffe attributed to Heal's, £6000.

ring cup holder, looked their age with tears to the leather upholstery, surface marks, staining and colour fading. Nevertheless, against a £1200-1800 estimate, they sold via thesaleroom.com at £10,500.

More affordable items at the March 28-29 auction included five plain fenders of chamfered oak with carved mice along the sides which went to a mix of private and trade buyers from £350-850, and half a dozen single beds with carved panel headboards and modern bases, all sold to dealers from £750-1600.

An earlier craftsman-built piece of furniture was a c.1897 coffer with a lift-out tray and compartment above two drawers.

It was unlabelled but attributed to Heal's by auctioneer John Thomson who had checked a very similar item in a Heal's exhibition at the dealership Millinery Works.

The inlaid coromandel and nickel lozenges were lifting and there were replacement hinges.

The vendor bought it for £32 at Phillips 50 years ago. At Carlisle it quadrupled the top estimate, selling to a London bidder at £6000.

From a century earlier came a pair of 8ft 6in (2.60m) tall George III carved pine open corner cabinets. These were good examples of the type featuring profuse shell and foliate carving and doubled top expectations when bought by a Yorkshire dealer at £10,000.

Vesta lights up a sale

Popular since they were first bought by Grand Tourists visiting Italy, this 9 x 12in (23 by 30cm) early 19th century micromosaic panel (right) offered by Elstob (25% buyer's premium) in Ripon on April 5 was a particularly fine example.

The scene is ancient Rome's Temple of Vesta.

"At first glance it looked like a painting," said auctioneer David Elstob when the micromosaic was brought to a valuation day.

It sold to a London dealer at a top-estimate £7000.

Snake cup buyer takes a £4000 bite

While some of the gloss has been taken off the market, the best pre-revolutionary Russian craftsmanship remains attractive to international collectors. This punch cup was one of several examples attributed to the Imperial Factory at St Petersburg that were offered at Duke's (25% buyer's premium) on April 5. They came for sale in Dorchester from a private Devon collection.

The 2in (5cm) high glass or carved rock crystal cup left was set with silver mounts and cabochon emeralds. A snake winds it way around the handle. Against a £50-100 estimate, it went to a UK collector at £4000.

Lawrence of Arabia replies to lucky Archie

The standout signature to an autograph album compiled by a boy scout in 1919 was that of Lawrence of Arabia, writes Terence Ryle.

It was his rueful comment on his fame and lack of fortune that ensured the album's prominence at a wide-ranging 900-lot sale at Canterbury Auction Galleries (22.5% buyer's premium) on April 1-2.

The boy scout, an Archibald Gibson who lived in Ramsgate, Kent, had sent a polite letter asking for Lawrence's autograph.

Dated 21 XI 19, the reply read: "Yes, old son, here's my signature, but don't believe that I'll be a famous man. It's just an American cinematograph artist who found out that I was a novelty in a khaki war and is making a lot of money out of it." Lawrence added as a postscript: "I wish I was making something too!"

The letter is unusual in that Lawrence signed his real name, TE Lawrence. The auction house noted: "He hated the limelight and later used pseudonyms to hide his identity. He enlisted in the RAF under the name 'John Hume Ross' and, later, 'Thomas Edward Shaw' – a name he used until his death, accompanied by a 'TES' signature.

At the date of the letter, November 21, 1919, he would have been 31 and recently demobbed as a lieutenant colonel.

The auction house added: "Our presumption is that he [Lawrence] was referring to a short film made of him by an American war correspondent, Lowell Thomas, who, along with cameraman Harry Chase, had encountered Lawrence in Palestine, drawn by rumours of his exploits.

"In August 1919, three months before the letter [to the boy scout] was written, Lowell Thomas had launched a series of illustrated lectures in London. Alongside Arabic music and dancing were photos and film of Lawrence, attired in his familiar headdress. The film especially became hugely popular, and we guess this is what Lawrence refers to in the letter."

In 1927 Lowell Thomas returned for a second photo shoot and edited his work into a longer film With Lawrence of Arabia. It was seen by an estimated 3m people between 1920-24 and made Lawrence a star.

The boy scout chose to title his collection of missives Men who did something [in the war].

He had received replies from other luminaries such as Field Marshal Douglas Haig writing from France, David Lloyd George, Arthur Balfour, Herbert Asquith, Rudyard Kipling, Robert Baden Powell and a number of heroes awarded the Victoria Cross.

Consigned by a distant relative of Gibson, the album went just below hopes at £3800 to a London buyer.

Rie and Coper combo

Top names among the ceramics offered at Canterbury were Lucie Rie and Hans Coper whose impressed marks were on a £840 stoneware coffee cup and saucer, with oatmeal, manganese glaze and fine sgraffito lines. It had been estimated at £600-800.

Furniture was led by a c.1850 pollard oak partners' desk stamped Gillow to the central drawer which made £2700.

Among the watches, an 18ct gold-cased moon-phase by Patek Philippe, complete with box and all original papers, as expected, led the day at £12,500.

However, of more interest to collectors of earlier watches was 19th century silver pair-cased pocket watch with a movement inscribed for Charles Frodsham & Co, and the serial number 05329. Enamelled to the dial with a town harbour scene and cast and chased to the outer case with an allegory of Peace watched over by Britannia, it made £740.

Half a dozen late 19th and early 20th century Chinese silk items were consigned by the grandchild of Lady Cunningham-Graham whose husband, Admiral Sir Angus, was senior naval officer on the West River in the 1930s.

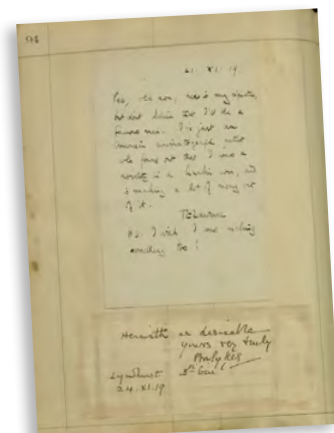

Best-seller was a robe in coloured silks and gold thread featuring dragons, bats, floral sprays and rolling waves. Pitched at £500-700, it sold to an internet bidder at £2500.

Rich pickings down south London

High-value Post-war and Contemporary art is increasingly on offer beyond Mayfair and the centre of the capital, as Alex Capon reports

Back in the late 1980s and 1990s, the market for Post-war and Contemporary art in the UK began to take giant strides forward.

With changes in taste coinciding with financial deregulation and increasing globalisation, this sector of the art market experienced its own Big Bang of sorts as the primary market expanded rapidly and then, somewhat later, this fed through to the secondary market and auction totals in this category began to increase.

It quickly became seen as the sector offering the highest returns on investment and the place to plant speculative money. Over time it would come to outrank Impressionist and Modern art as the highest grossing overall category.

Despite the major downturn of 2008-9, these developments have largely been sustained. Nevertheless, the high growth of the Post-war and Contemporary auction market during this period has, in large part, been the preserve of the major London rooms.

It is only really over recent years that some of the market has begun filter outwards and downwards to any great extent.

A few signs of this steady trickle-down effect have been witnessed so far in 2023, with some significant results recorded for decent middle market material in particular.

While gaining consignments of good material has always been problematic for smaller auction houses, a couple of notable individual lots and collections have appeared at sales beyond Mayfair over the last few months.

These have included an increasing number of works by international artists creating waves in UK salerooms.

Saatchi source

A recent case came at Roseberys (25% buyer's premium) when the south London saleroom attracted international bidding and posted a £240,000 hammer price for a Bindu picture by Indian artist Syed Haider Raza (1922-2016).

Reported in News Digest, ATG No 2592, the price fetched was the highest at a UK auction for an example from this series.

1. Chair Transformation #22 by Lucas Samaras, sold for £60,000 as part of the Saatchi & Saatchi collection at Roseberys.

2. Untitled (House) by Joel Shapiro, £22,000.

3. Box #51 by Samaras, £140,000.

4. La Ronde by Marion Adnams, £22,000.

This followed a sale earlier in the year when the firm offered a group of over 40 works owned by the advertising company Saatchi & Saatchi.

Charles Saatchi was famously one of the buyers who helped generate the original expansion of the sector in the first place, amassing a large and varied collection that had both its admirers and critics.

The fact that now, three decades on, works acquired for the advertising firm he established with his brother Maurice (now Lord Saatchi) should now be offered outside of Bond Street and St James's seemed symbolic of the widening auction market.

Many of the pictures and sculptures at Roseberys had been acquired in the 1980s and had featured in Alistair Hicks' 1989 book New British Art in the Saatchi Collection.

With the brothers departing the company in 1994-5, most of these works had not been seen publicly since.

Although eight lots were

withdrawn, the remaining 39 lots at the auction on March 14 performed well, with 31 selling for a hammer total of just over £260,000.

Wooden wonders

Among the works by overseas artists posting significant sums, two wooden constructions by Lucas Samaras (b.1936) led the proceedings.

Born in Kastoria in Greece, Samaras emigrated to the US at the age of 11 and became part of a group of experimental artists whose varied output ranged from minimalism and conceptual sculpture to neo-expressionism and body art.

He also became known for incorporating photographic elements to his work after acquiring a Polaroid 360 camera in 1969.

With works now in major collections such as New York's Met Museum and London's Tate Modern, his art normally appears at Sotheby's and Christie's when it comes to auction.

The sector now outranks Impressionist and Modern art as the highest grossing overall category

The two examples from the Saatchi & Saatchi collection at Roseberys were from the mid-late '60s – an appealing date for buyers in this market.

First up was Box #51, a sculptural work from 1966 comprising a painted box with multiple doors and decorated with coloured yarns, plastic jewels and coloured acetate. The inside of the box contained a glass bottle, an electric light bulb and a rotating magnetic stirrer.

A note in the catalogue stated: 'The luxurious – almost fetishistic – bejewelled exterior contrasts with its hidden interior, guarded by multiple doors, reflecting the contrast between the exterior and interior self that has preoccupied the artist throughout his career'.

Measuring 14in (36cm) high, it was an early example of Samaras' boxes – he produced a numbered series of 135 works on this theme in total from 1960 onward.

This one had originally been purchased from New York's Pace Gallery by the US collectors Burton and Emily Hall Tremaine who also owned works by the likes of Jasper Johns and Andy Warhol. It was acquired by Saatchi & Saatchi after selling as part of the auction of the Tremaine collection at Christie's New York in 1988 where it fetched $55,000 (£30,360).

Estimated at £100,000-150,000 at Roseberys, it drew a battle between two international bidders on the phone and was eventually knocked down at £140,000 to one of them, a collector.

While the auction record for Samaras stands at a hefty $530,000 (£381,585) for Box #119 from 1987 that sold at Christie's New York in 2021, this was the highest price for the artist at a UK auction.

The following lot was titled Chair Transformation #22 and dated from 1969-70. Again it was part of a series, in this case 25 works based on the theme of chairs metamorphosing into other forms, and it had also originally been purchased from the Pace Gallery.

This one was made of wood and mirror glass and measured 3ft 4in (1.03m) high. It had been included in an early retrospective of the artist's work at the Whitney Museum of American Art in 1972-73.

Offered with a lesser estimate of £12,000-18,000, it drew greater competition as multiple bidders participated on the phone and online. It was eventually knocked down at £60,000 to the same international private collector, fetching the second-highest price for the artist at auction in the UK, only behind the above-mentioned lot, and the second highest for one of Samaras's chairs – Chair

Transformation #20B from 1996 had made $180,000 (£115,200) at Sotheby's New York in 2015.

Shapiro sculpture

Elsewhere at the Saatchi & Saatchi sale, another sculptural work bringing demand was Untitled (House) by American artist Joel Shapiro (b.1941). A bronze and lead minimalist structure measuring 5in (13cm) high, it was part of an edition of three from 1974.

While the artist can make six-figure sums at auction for his larger monumental figures, this small example of the Shapiro's simplified geometric constructions was estimated at £7000-9000 and sold at £22,000 – a sum that appears to be the highest at auction for this edition.

Back to Brits

As well as the Saatchi & Saatchi collection, Roseberys offered a mixed-owner sale of 20th century art on the same day which had more of a British focus. Among the notable results was a major record for Marion Adnams (1898-1995). The artist studied at the Derby School of Art during the 1930s and had her first solo show at Jack Bilbo's celebrated Modern Art Gallery in London in 1944.

Big spenders evident at a wider level

While she produced a range of work during her career, she is best remembered for her distinctive Surrealist paintings.

A retrospective at Derby Art Gallery in 2017-18 helped her regain some recognition as did the appearance of some of her works at Dulwich Picture Gallery's British Surrealism show in 2020 (where they hung alongside those of her contemporaries Ithell Colquhoun and Leonora Carrington).

Very few Adnams pictures have emerged on the market over the last 20 years partly due to the fact that she stopped painting in the late 1960s due to her deteriorating eyesight meaning her intricate works are quite rare.

Go large

The example at Roseberys was the largest and most important of her works to ever come to auction.

The 2ft 6in x 3ft 4in (76cm x 1.02m) signed oil on board from 1963 titled La Ronde depicted anthropomorphised trees, one of her most prominent subjects which she returned to throughout her career.

Showing leafless trees twisting like ancient figures in an expansive landscape, it had similar motifs to some of her best known works now in Derby Museum.

With the heightened interest in British female artists on the current market, particularly early Surrealists, the auction house was confident this picture would do well and gave it an estimate of £6000-8000, well over the artist's previous auction record of £3300.

After generating an intense competition, it was eventually knocked down at £22,000 to a UK private collector.

It will be interesting to see if this new benchmark yields further works to the market, perhaps more material to indicate the 'trickle down' effect. ■

Left: two works by Maliheh Afnan that were offered together and made £4800 at Dawsons.

Small Afnan works fly to four figures

Flying over a £200-300 estimate at a recent sale at Dawsons (25% buyer's premium) in Maidenhead were two small mixed-media works by Maliheh Afnan (1935-2016).

Offered as a single lot, both were relatively late pictures by the Palestinian artist, who was born in Haifa to Iranian parents. They demonstrated her keen interest in calligraphy.

One was titled My Kite, a 7 x 8½in (18 x 23cm), work on paper that was signed and dated 99 to the lower right.

The other was titled Tablet V and dated from 2000. Measuring 6in (16cm) square, it was formed of plaster of Paris and a water-based paint.

While not many of her works have ever appeared at auctions in the West, a large oil painting Lady with a Hat from 1961 established a benchmark for the artist when it sold for £50,000 at Sotheby's in London in 2016.

Although these small compositions were a rather different proposition in terms of style, subject and size, they nevertheless found appeal at the Berkshire sale against the 'there-to-be-sold' estimate.

Bringing good competition at the sale on April 27, they were eventually knocked down at £4800 to an online buyer.

Certainly worth a handshake at £23,000

The artist Júlio Pomar (1926-2018) is considered one of the most important modern Portuguese painters.

A native of Lisbon, examples of his early neo-realist early works and his later dynamic abstracts can be found in plenty of public galleries across Portugal as well as overseas museums such as the Royal Museum of Fine Arts of Belgium and Museum of Modern Art in Rio de Janeiro.

Commercially, his pictures have made six-figure sums on a number of occasions in his homeland but few pictures have ever emerged in the UK.

A rare example appeared, however, at North Yorkshire saleroom David Duggleby (21% buyer's premium) earlier this spring. It was believed to be the first time a major work by the artist had come up for sale in this country.

Spotted at top of staircase

Don Quixote from 1961 came to auction from a vendor whose father was an art dealer and had bought the 2ft 1in x 19¼in (64 x 49cm) oil on canvas in Edinburgh in 1989 for £89.

The vendor's collection comprised some large Victorian pictures but this striking picture was spotted hanging at the top of the staircase by Duggleby auctioneer and valuer Dominic Cox when he visited the vendor's Whitby home. Cox commented how saleable he thought it was and the vendor, not being particularly affectionate towards it, agreed to consign it.

Having given an initial verbal valuation of a few thousand pounds, Cox researched the painting and, realising that it might be a significant picture, revised the estimate for the auction and pitched it at £5000-8000 for the sale in Scarborough on March 17.

After the catalogue was published online, significant interest came from a number of parties both in the UK and overseas. On the day, five phone lines were booked (three from Portugal, one from Austria and one from the UK) and the saleroom received a further seven commission bids, the majority from Portugal.

The bidding opened at £7600 and eventually came down to a battle between a Portuguese dealer on the phone, a Portuguese private buyer bidding online and a London-based interior designer also bidding online.

It was eventually knocked down to the latter at £23,000. The price was the highest of the Duggleby sale and established a benchmark for the artist in the UK.

After the gavel fell, the vendor, who had been watching in the room, came up and interrupted the bidding on the next lot to shake Cox's hand. "I've never experienced this in all my years of auctioneering," Cox told ATG.

Indian works making good progress

by Alex Capon

Two separately consigned Modern Indian paintings were among the notable performers at Chiswick Auctions (25% buyer's premium) in the early spring, one fetching an expected price but the other making a sum that was more of a surprise.

An untitled work by Narayan Shridhar Bendre (1910-92), a member of the key Bombay Progressives artists' group whose works are now highly sought after, sold within predictions at the auction on March 8.

It came to auction from a descendant of the potter Gurcharan Singh (1899-1995) who, according to the catalogue, had acquired this work directly from the artist.

The 3ft x 3ft 2in (91 x 97cm) signed oil on canvas was an example of the artist's abstract compositions which mostly date from the 1960s onward.

However, commercially, these tend to be less valuable than his figurative works which were deemed a pioneering blend of traditional art forms with modernist techniques – a number of such pictures have made significant six-figure sums at auctions

The market for Bendre and other Bombay Progressives has developed significantly since the picture appeared at auction in 2000

in the Indian subcontinent in the last five years.

The picture at Chiswick had previously appeared at Bonhams in London in 2000 where it was unsold against a £2500-3500 estimate.

But with the market for Bendre and other Bombay Progressives having developed significantly since then, the current picture was clearly viewed as a decent proposition against a £10,000-20,000 estimate.

After attracting bidding on the day, it was knocked down at £13,000 to a private India-based buyer.

Hashmi on the up

Bringing more eye-catching competition was a painting by Zarina Hashmi (1937-2020), a semi-abstract composition depicting a figure sitting in front of a row of houses.

The market for the artist and printmaker appears to be on the up with five of the top 10 highest prices for her work at auction being recorded since she died three years ago according to Artprice.

The artist was born in India but lived a peripatetic life (she travelled widely with her diplomat husband) but later became based in New York where she established a considerable reputation producing a range of work from conceptual sculpture to woodblock prints.

This 21¼in x 2ft 4in (54 x 71cm) oil on canvas was signed and dated 68 to the upper left. It had originally been purchased from the Sarala Art Centre in Chennai and had entered a private collection in the US, from where it was acquired by Chiswick's vendor.

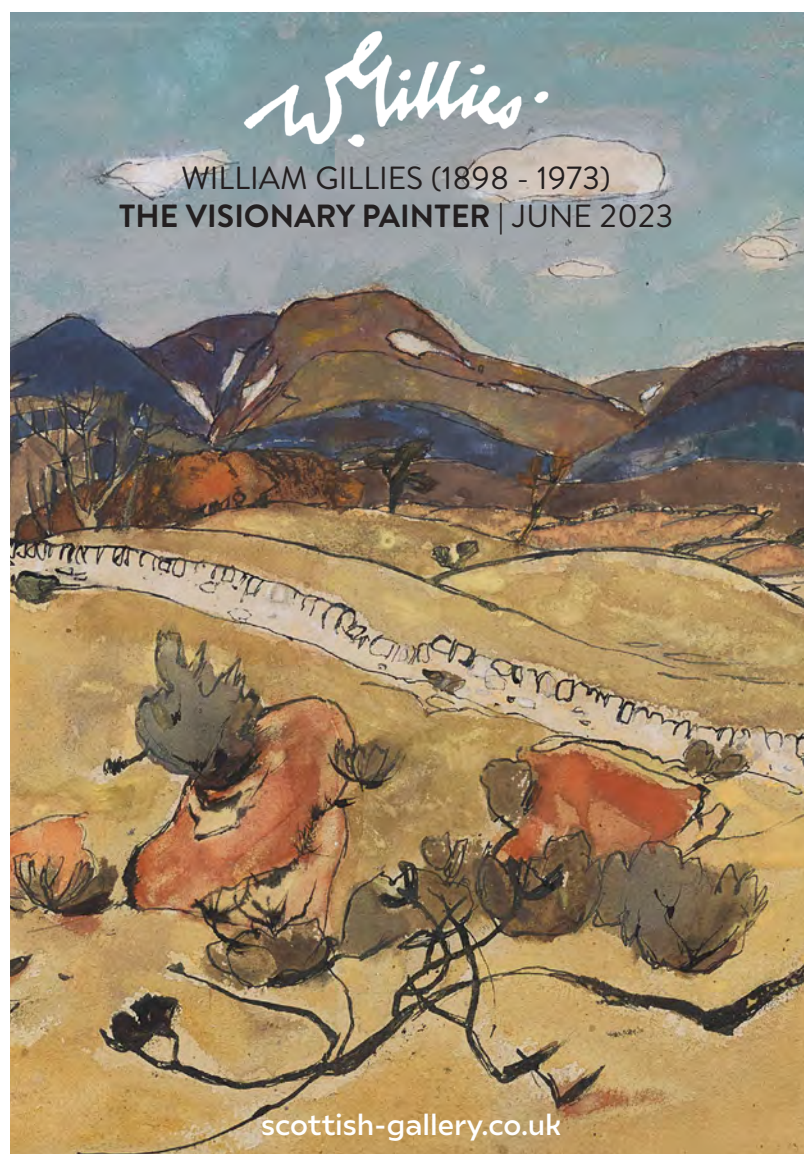

Being an early work that was stylistically removed from much of her more familiar later output, it was slightly difficult to quantify as a commercial entity.

This may well have led to the conservative estimate of £2000-3000 but, after becoming the subject of a strong bidding battle, it was knocked down at £24,000 to a London dealer.

While the artist has recorded considerably higher sums at auctions in India and the US, the price represented one of the top five results for Hashmi at a UK auction.

Olympia picture sales at the double

French artist Nancy Delouis (b.1941) was born into an artistic family.

Her father came from a long line of artists and artisans dating back many centuries and her mother was an art teacher. Her grandfather was Auguste Rodin's cousin.

Her own paintings were influenced by Pierre Bonnard (1867-1947) in particular, something that can be seen in the range of interior scenes, landscapes and depictions of women that she produced.

Something of a combination of all three emerged at Olympia Auctions (25% buyer's premium) in west London on March 22.

Titled Vieilles, the 2ft 4in x 2ft 11in (71 x 89cm) oil on canvas was a colourful depiction of two old ladies seated in a garden. It had previously appeared in an exhibition held by dealer Messum's in 2012.

Estimated at £500-700, it was knocked down at £3500 to a UK private collector – the second-highest sum at auction for the artist according to Artprice, only behind the £12,000 for the larger painting En Fin de Journée that sold at Dreweatts in March 2021.

The auction was the first Paintings and Works on Paper Auction at Olympia run by newly appointed head of department Adrian Biddell.

Offering 125 lots, a total of 102

sold with the selling rate at 81.6%. Biddell said: "I am delighted with the high level of engagement in our picture sales as well as the level of consignments we are attracting. With our picture sales doubling in number this year we are building on market momentum."

Shift to traditional style

The Asian and Islamic Works of Art sale at Olympia on April 26 included two trademark paintings by Bengali artist Jamini Roy (1887-1972).

Having trained from the age of 16 at the Government College of Art in Kolkata, Roy turned away from his Western-style academic training and became noted for the way he adapted traditional Indian styles and folk painting. He received the Padma Bhushan award in 1954, the third-highest civilian honour in India.

The works at Olympia came from the estate of Louisa Service (1931-2021), the joint chairman of the publisher and event organiser Hemming Group who was also a law reform campaigner, serving as a justice of the peace and president of The Commonwealth Countries League for 40 years.

First up at the west London saleroom was the 1950s gouache on paper Untitled (A Maiden). Measuring 2ft 3in x 13in (68 x 32cm) and signed in Bengali to the lower right, it was estimated at £2500-3500 and sold for £9500.

The following lot was a depiction of a woman and bull titled Balakrishna. It sold above estimate at £5500.

While Roy's more elaborate works have made strong five-figure and even six-figure sums on occasion at auction, these were decent mid-range sums for Roy.

Right: an untitled relief by Ben Nicholson, £54,000 at Mallams.

Sense of purity

This untitled work from c.1945 by Ben Nicholson (1894-1982) comprises a mahogany relief applied with oil paint. It was offered at Mallams (25% buyer's premium) of Oxford on May 17-18 as part of its Modern Art & Design sale.

The vendor received the 7¼ x 11in (20 x 28cm) piece as a gift from Nicholson's daughter Kate in c.1997.

The back is inscribed Nicholson Chy An Kerris, Carbis

Bay, St Ives – a reference to the house called Chy-an-Kerris on the far side of Carbis Bay to which the Nicholsons moved in September 1942.

The artist began making shallow reliefs in the 1930s, reducing their colour in terms of plainness to achieve a sense of purity, as shown in the current lot.

Estimated at £40,000-60,000 at Mallams, it sold for £54,000.

Tunnard not seen for half a century

Painted just after the Second World War, this Surrealist landscape by John Tunnard (1900-71) depicts a series of futuristic antennae, ancient megaliths and henges – plus the 'dry tree' motif the artist used as a symbol of destruction and death.

Measuring 16in x 2ft 2in (41 x 66cm), the meticulously painted gouache on paper titled simply Composition, 1947 was one of just 13 known gouaches created by the artist that year, with others of a similar style and quality held in American museum collections. It was acquired by the vendor's father directly from the artist in the 1960s and had not been seen in public for at least half a century.

One of the highlights of the inaugural Avant Garde sale at Lyon & Turnbull (26/25/20% buyer's premium) in London on April 27, it was estimated at £30,000-50,000 and took £34,000.

Buffet treats keenly contested at Drouot

Art from the collection of Christine Poirot-Delpech was the object of a sell-out single-owner sale at Art Valorem (28.8% buyer's premium inc tax) at Drouot on April 6.

Poirot-Delpech was the assistant at the Galerie Maurice Garnier from 1972-2002 and the works on offer here had passed down by descent.

All 39 lots found buyers to chalk up a premium-inclusive total of over €4.7m.

The ensemble included paintings by Jean Fautrier, Alberto Giacometti and Antoni Clavé, but at its heart were no fewer than 29 lots by Bernard Buffet (1928-99), who was the Galerie Maurice Garnier's main artist, made up of mostly paintings with a small selection of lithographs.

Prices were well in excess of estimates in many cases. Topping the list and the sale was Buffet's 4ft 9in x 3ft 9in (1.47 x 1.15m) oil on canvas from 1970 Les Folles, femmes à l'éventail, which more than doubled its guide at €420,000 (£371,680).

Works on paper by Buffet were also keenly contested with his 1986 signed Venetian view of the Piazzetta and Doges Palace in ink and watercolour measuring 19½in x 2ft 1½in (50 x 65cm) taking a double estimate €88,000 (£77,875).

A suite of Venetian lithographic views from the same year – a work with text by the artist's wife Annabel Buffet – made €44,000 (£38,940) against a €4000-7000 guide.

This was one of 10 artist's copies comprising 10 colour lithographs measuring 2ft 6in x 23in (76.5 x 58cm) and 10 in black, all signed by the artist, with proof of printing countersigned by Annabel.

A further selection of over 300 prints and lithographs by Buffet from Poirot-Delpech's collection were offered in an online sale by the same auction house on April 13.

Calder on a roll at auction

One of the top-priced lots in a recent sale held by CRN Auctions (22% buyer's premium) in Cambridge, Massachusetts, on April 23 was this work on paper by Alexander Calder (1898-1976).

The 2ft 6½in x 22¼in gouache and ink on paper, Rolling Down (right), is signed and dated lower right Calder 66.

The work was acquired by Nicholas Guppy directly from the artist in the 1970s and came to auction from a private collector in Boston. It is registered in the archives of the Calder Foundation, New York.

Estimated at $20,000-30,000, it was finally hammered down at $63,000 (£50,805).

Gorky work from late on

This late untitled drawing by Arshile Gorky (1904-48) in pencil and crayon on paper was the highlight of a sale of Modern and Contemporary paintings held by Digard (25/20/14% buyer's premium) on March 28 at Drouot in Paris.

Measuring 17 x 22in (43 x 56cm) and signed and dated 1943 lower right, it is a late work prefiguring the Abstract Expressionist style on which the artist was an important influence.

It is registered in the Gorky foundation archives and in the catalogue raisonné and has also featured in two retrospective exhibitions on the artist: at The Whitney Museum in 2003 and the Pompidou Centre in 2007.

At Drouot it sold for €630,000 (£557,520).

Get your claws into a Katz work

The American artist Alex Katz (b.1927) is known for his large, brightly coloured and boldly delineated works.

As well as paintings he has had a prolific career in printmaking, producing numerous editions.

Pictured here are examples of two of these that came up for sale recently in auctions on either side of the Atlantic.

Doyle's (26/21/15% buyer's premium) sale of Prints and Multiples on April 25 included five works by Katz, three of which realised new auction highs for the prints in question.

They were led at $25,000 (£20,160) by a 4ft x 3ft (1.2m x 91cm) screen print of Ada with Flowers from 1980, a portrait of his wife behind a large bunch of blooms (right).

Signed and numbered 23/65 in pencil and co-published by the artist and Simca Prints Artists Inc New York, it came from the Flower Family collection, win recent months this year, and had a provenance to the Harcus Krakow Gallery, Boston.

On May 6 in Dusseldorf a sale held by Dr Andreas

Sturges (20% buyer's premium) included a 2ft 2in x 3ft (66 x 92cm) screen print from 1990. Ada in Hat (above right), signed and numbered 19 from an edition of 150 published by Gaultney-Klineman in New York, realised €17,000 (£15,045).

Morandi keeps it simple

A classic pale pastel toned still-life by Giorgio Morandi (1890-1964) is one of the headline lots in a two-day sale of Modern and Contemporary Art at Farsettiarte in Prato on May 26-27.

The 10 x 12in (25.5 x 31cm) oil on canvas is a late work from 1961 signed lower centre and comes from a private collection having formerly been with the Galleria Milione in Milan and two collections in Rome.

The estimate is €650,000-850,000.

Monochrome marvels

Image © Artcurial

Artcurial has two days of sales devoted to Impressionist and Modern and Post-war and Contemporary art in Paris on June 7-8.

Headlining the latter will be two trademark monochrome works by major names in French post-war art: Yves Klein's (1928-62) untitled blue IKB 265 from 1957 (above) and Pierre Soulages' (1919-2022) untitled textured black work (below) from December 13, 2008.

The Klein painting, in pigment and synthetic resin on paper, measures 13½in x 2ft 2in (34 x 66cm) and is signed and dated lower right Yves Klein 57 and dedicated on the reverse A François Dufrêne et Ginette, Yves. It has an estimate of €300,000-500,000.

The more recent work by Soulages, who died late last year, is larger at 2ft 1½in x 4ft 8in (65 x 1.43m), executed in acrylic on canvas and is signed and dated on the reverse. The guide is €700,000-900,000.

The sales are complemented by an evening auction on June 7 of works from the estate of the famous French conductor and composer Pierre Boulez (1925-2016).

On offer is a mix of paintings, prints and works on paper by the artists whose work he admired, a number of them personal friends.

Metal worker

The composition and use of colour make Monica nude with Lichtenstein, which is being sold by Ketterer in Munich on June 9, instantly recognisable as a work by American pop-artist Tom Wesselmann (1931-2004).

The unique technique he used for this work from 1989 is one developed at the beginning of the decade when he began experimenting with metal as a medium for drawing, initially using hand-cut aluminium and coloured lacquers. With the assistance of Alfred Lippincott, a specialist for metalworks who created large-format sculptures for numerous world-famous artists, Wesselmann was able to cut out patterns in sheets of steel using lasers.

Although he was no friend of technology, Wesselmann realised that it was the only way to cut the metal as precisely as he desired. "I anticipated how exciting it would be for me to get a drawing back in steel. I could hold it in my hands. I could pick it up by the lines, off the paper. It was so exciting. It was like suddenly I was a whole new artist."

In the following years, his so-called steel drawings became highly prized collector's pieces. The example in Munich, which measures 3ft 7in x 6ft (1.1 x 1.83m), was purchased by a south German collector from a Munich gallery some 20 years ago. It is now expected to bring €140,000-180,000.

Reichstag wrap

The artist couple Christo (1935-2020) and Jeanne-Claude (1935-2009) were obviously in equal measure creative, determined and patient.

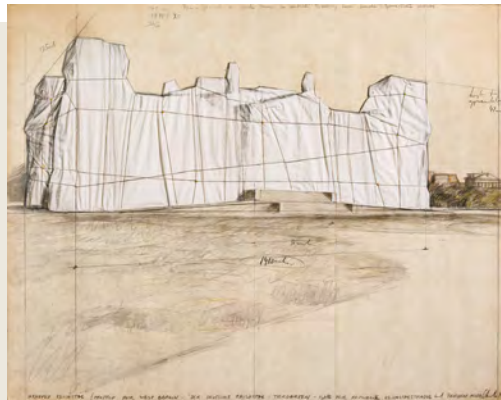

Many of their projects took not years but decades until they were finally realised.

A case in point was the ambition to wrap the pre-war and post-reunification German parliament building, the Reichstag in Berlin. During the existence of the GDR, the inner-German border and, after 1961, the Berlin Wall ran right along the rear of the building.

In its sale of June 1-2, Grisebach in Berlin is offering an early preparatory mixed-media composition showing Christo's impression of how the packaged building would look.

The 1ft 11in x 2ft 4in (58 x 72cm) collage is dated 1973. Two years previously, the American historian and journalist Michael S Cullen had sent Christo a postcard of the Reichstag with the suggestion that he should wrap it.

In the following decades, the project was supported and then rejected as governments, mayors and parliament presidents came and went. It looked as though it would never come to fruition.

However, after reunification, the mood changed and bit by bit the supporters gained the upper hand. In 1994, it was put to the vote in the German parliament, then still in the old capital Bonn: 292 voted yes, 223 rejected the notion. From then on, relatively speaking, things moved very quickly.

On June 24, 1995, the wrapping was completed. The action lasted only two weeks before it was dismantled again. In that time, over 5m people came to wonder.

The whole event cost $13m; in comparison the collage in the auction could be cheap at the price: the estimate is €60,000-80,000.

Rare Hodgkin appearance

It is a rare event when a painting by Howard Hodgkin (1932-2017) turns up at a German auction, but on June 5, Van Ham can offer his 1996 painting Miami in its Modern and Contemporary sale.

Hodgkin was fiercely independent, never belonging to a school or group of painters. The panel on offer is characteristic for his oeuvre, with its broad brushstrokes of vibrant colours which are not restricted by the picture plane but continue over the wooden frame.

His works were inspired by memories of places visited or moods experienced.

International success came to Hodgkin relatively late in life, when he was in his fifties. He represented Great Britain at the Venice Biennale in 1984 and a year later, he won the prestigious Turner Prize.

An indication that he has lost none of his international market value is the estimate of €250,000-350,000 for the 17 x 19in (43 x 49cm) panel in the Cologne sale.

It has been consigned by a local collector who acquired it at the Anthony d'Offay Gallery in London.

Brontë works hit saleroom heights

Works by the three sisters including copies published under pseudonyms come to a Cambridge auction

by Ian McKay

Works by the Brontë sisters were a key feature of an April 27 'Library Sale' held by Cheffins (24.5% buyer's premium) of Cambridge.

The stand-out lot was an 1847 set of three volumes that brought together Emily's only novel, Wuthering Heights, which was published under the pseudonym 'Ellis Bell', and a first of Anne's Agnes Grey, a rather less familiar tale that was based on her experiences as a governess.

These novels had been accepted for publication before their elder sister, Charlotte, had completed Jane Eyre, first published by Smith, Elder & Co in that same year – but it was only the success of that work which finally stirred Thomas Cautley Newby into issuing her sisters' novels.

Though given an estimate of £10,000-20,000, the set of Emily and Anne's books was offered "as viewed with all condition issues", and it was pointed out that some leaves of Agnes Grey, among them the title page, may have been supplied from a shorter copy and appeared to be of later date.

Bound in half blue morocco gilt by Rivière, this set was catalogued as being sold by a descendant of the original owner, whose bookplates appear in all three volumes.

The print run of the edition is thought to have been limited to just 250 copies and this rare survivor sold to an online bidder for £46,000.

A three-decker, 1848 first of Anne Brontë's only other and much more successful novel, The Tenant of Wildfell Hall, again bound in half blue morocco gilt by Rivière, made £13,000 via thesaleroom.com.

London contrasts

Highlights of the Cambridge sale also included an example of C&J Greenwood's large, 1827 Map of London..., billed as showing good original colour and universal tone. It sold for £21,000, over four times top estimate.

In complete contrast, a Buckingham Palace headed note card of c.1938-39 bore on both sides a number of childish pencil drawings of cottages, chairs, dressing tables, etc. Those drawings (previewed in

2. All About the Telephone and Phonograph. How to make and use them, published by Ward Lock & Co of London c.1880, an anonymous 'one shilling' work which runs to over 120pp including advertisements, sold at £650.

3. One side of a Buckingham Palace notecard of c.1938-39 with drawings by the future Queen Elizabeth II and her sister, Princess Margaret, £9000.

4. In a much later binding, like a number of the Brontë and other lots, this 1847 set of three volumes brought together firsts of Emily Brontë's only novel, Wuthering Heights – as 'Ellis Bell' – and the first of her sister Anne's two books, Agnes Grey. It was sold at £46,000.

had made the drawings as a way of passing the time they had to spend in the waiting room.

Their artwork had initially been left behind in the waiting room but was later recovered and sent to Buckingham Palace – though after being copied it was returned to the finder. Over 80 years later their drawings found a buyer at £9000. ■

Austen's pride in her work

Two of Jane Austen's works, both from the same Wyoming collector's estate, were stand-out lots in a May 11 sale held in Chicago by Hindman (26/20/15% buyer's premium).

It was a book to which she had given the title 'First Impressions' in the late 1790s that proved the star turn.

This had been written when she was just 20, but was rejected by one publisher, Cadell, who it seems had not even read it, and did not appear until January 1813, when Thomas Egerton published it in London as Pride and Prejudice.

Writing to her sister Cassandra after receiving a copy of her "own darling child", Jane expressed her feelings toward her heroine: "I must confess that I think her as delightful a creature as ever appeared in print, & how I shall be able to tolerate those who do not like her at least, I do not know."

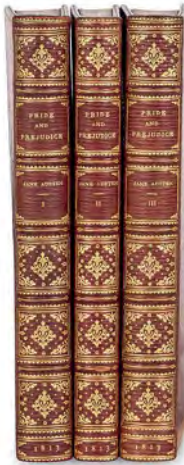

In a 20th century red morocco gilt binding by Sawyer, this copy topped the bidding in the US sale at $85,000 (£68,000).

Originally intended to appear as 'Elinor and Marianne', the epistolary novel by Austen we now know as Sense and Sensibility had been revised several times over a period of 14 years before it finally appeared in print in October 1811, Egerton having agreed to publish it on a commission basis.

Only a thousand copies, perhaps fewer, were printed, but a couple of years later Jane wrote to her brother, Francis, telling him: "You will be glad to hear that every copy of Sense and Sensibility is sold and that it has brought me £140 beside the copyright, if that should ever be of any value."

Again in a later red morocco gilt binding by Sawyer, it found a buyer at $65,000 (£52,000).

Left: 1813 first in a later binding of Jane Austen's Pride and Prejudice, $85,000 (£68,000) at Hindman.

Washington thrills in a Philadelphia 'wheelhouse'

One of the more remarkable results of recent weeks came in a May 3 sale at Freeman's (26/21/15% buyer's premium) of Philadelphia.

A volume from George Washington's personal library that had been estimated at $18,000 was sold for a rather higher sum: $350,000 (£279,105).

The lot in question was a copy of The Transactions of the Royal Humane Society that had been gifted to Washington during his second presidential term by a physician, Dr John Coakley Lettson.

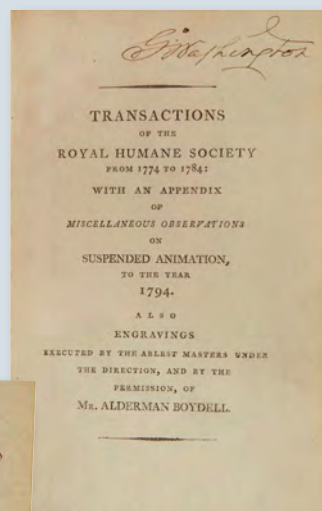

It bore Washington's bold signature at the top of the half-title page, and that was what made the bidding soar.

"The market for presidential books, documents, and autographs is quite strong, and this exceptional result really drives that home," said Darren Winston, head of the saleroom's books and manuscripts department.

"As rare as material like this is, it's still Freeman's bread and butter, right in our wheelhouse, and we're thrilled with the result – as is the consignor."

This Portrait of Lady Darling by Sir John Lavery (1856-1941), signed upper left; inscribed and dated 1906 to verso, is estimated at £3000-5000 in the Aldridges of Bath auction on May 30.

An oil on canvas-board, 14 x 10in (35.5 x 25.5cm), in a tortoiseshell and ebonised frame, came by family descent to the present owner.

Lady Darling (Mary Caroline Greathed, 1864-1913), was the daughter of Major-General William Wilberforce Harris Greathed CB and Alice Clive.

In September 1885 she married Charles John Darling, 1st Baron Darling PC (1849-1936), English lawyer, politician and High Court judge.

A caricature of Lord Darling by Spy featured in Vanity Fair, July 1897.

A clock sale at Gardiner Houlgate in Corsham on May 25 includes, estimated at £2000-4000, this large English brass lantern clock signed Robert Seignior, Londini.

At 22in (55cm) high with a 10in (25cm) dial, the clock is believed to be unique and possibly a special commission. The maker, was regarded as quite a rogue (working in Exchange Alley at the premises later occupied by Daniel Quare he was constantly in trouble with the Clockmakers Company administration) but was also highly regarded.

On October 10, 1682, he was paid £20 for a clock commissioned for the Treasury Chambers. It may be that this is that clock.

The sale at The Auction Room in Twickenham on May 30 includes this 17th century delftware dish with a radiating geometric design estimated at £1500-2500.

Bought at Sotheby's in 1992 as part of the John Philip Kassebaum collection, it was previously in the Lipski collection in 1983.

This Egypt Medal with a Suakin 1885 clasp is named for 510 Pte W. Sinnott NSW Infy.

The campaign was the first time Australian units were sent overseas to fight alongside imperial troops, a total of 16 officers and 517 men serving with the New South Wales Infantry between March 1 and May 14, 1885, the period for which the clasp was awarded.

It has an estimate of £200-300 as part of a sale of Medals, Awards, Banknotes & Coins at Lawrences of Crewkerne on May 25.

Gantries on a Sunday, Belfast, 1936 by Harry Kernoff (1900-74) has a guide of €20,000-30,000 at Adam's in Dublin on May 31.

The London-born artist painted the daily life in many of Ireland's towns and cities, this oil depicting a moment of leisure in Victoria Park under the looming cranes of the Harland and Woolfe shipyard.

At 2ft x 3ft 1in (62 x 94cm) it is thought to be the oil of the same title sold for £50 at the Royal Hibernian Academy 1936 exhibition. It was bought by the owner's family at the Kernoff show held by the Godolphin Gallery in 1974.

A detailed preparatory sketch for this painting is in the National Gallery of Ireland, part of the collection donated by the artist's sister, Lena Kernoff, after his death.

On June 19 Bamfords of Derby will sell the 152-lot Gilchrist collection of Fine Dolls, Toys and Automata.

"This collection has been my passion for the last half a century," says the vendor. "Many of the dolls were purchased from antiques fairs and auction houses such as Christie's, Bonhams and Sotheby's."

This late 19th century French bisque head and painted composition bodied doll has an automaton walking mechanism with a key initialised for Roulet & Decamps.

In a period card box labelled for Au Bon Marché, Paris it has a guide of £500-700.

bamfords-auctions.co.uk*

This Kammer & Reinhardt Walter 102 bisque antique character doll has been given an estimate of £12,000-17,000 at the Vectis Doll and Teddy Bear sale in Teesside on June 6.

Only a few examples of this model are known. It is part of the so-called 100 series culpted by the German artist Arthur Lewin-Funcke. The models, designed to be bought by adults in the years before the First World War, were based on Lewin-Funcke's own children with this particular design 'the Urchin', c.1910, first made as a bronze in 1898.

This doll, in original cotton and woollen shorts clothing, was consigned to Vectis by an owner who inherited it from her grandmother. The damage to the foot was relatively recent: it was chewed by the family dog when a puppy.

The Costume, Accessories and Textiles Sale at Tennants in Leyburn, North Yorkshire, on May 26 will include a selection of antique quilts. Leading the colourful array is the unusual early 19th century cotton coverlet pictured here, which incorporates a delicate sampler into the centre of the design.

The sampler, which depicts Adam and Eve, is signed Martha Curchin and is dated 1826. The same hand most likely made the rest of the fine quilt too, which features intricate appliqué flowers and animals, and it will be sold alongside a further sampler worked by Sally Cole Curchin.

There were numerous Curchins recorded around the Newark area in the 19th century, and, indeed, this was where the current vendor purchased the quilt.

Estimate £500-800.

A similar fine early 19th century cotton appliqué bed cover from the same collection is offered with an estimate of £400-600.

This panel of Charles II era beadwork depicting a lady holding flowers alongside birds and exotic animals measures 13 x 10in (34 x 24cm).

At Brighton & Hove Auctions on May 25-26 it is guided at £200-400.

Edward Lear travelled extensively around Greece, Albania, Turkey and Egypt between summer of 1848 and spring 1849.

This watercolour, sheet no 159, bears the inscription Parnassus, April 12. 11am and is annotated in Lear's hand with words such as perfectly flat plain of lines; dark violet and very red red – reminders for a later oil painting.

It comes for sale at Canterbury Auction Galleries on June 4-5 from Kent private school Dover College. It is assumed the watercolour was a gift to headmaster William Cookworthy Compton who left in 1910.

The estimate is £10,000.

Two very quirky boyhood photographs by the celebrated French amateur photographer Jacques-Henri Lartigue (1894-1986) come for sale at Chiswick Auctions.

Mounted together, Descent of the Rabbit and The Rabbit has Arrived have a guide of £10,000-15,000 as part of the May 31 sale of 19th and 20th Century Photographs.

The pair of silver gelatin prints document an episode in September 1911 when Lartigue and his brother Zissou constructed a loop-the-loop track which transported the family's unsuspecting rabbits and chickens in a tailor-made car.

Descent, showing the wooden track descending from a second-floor window, is framed alongside Arrived which depicts a family pet emerging apparently unscathed from the journey.

Lartigue, who was taught to use a camera at the age of seven, gifted much of his vast photographic archive to the French state but these prints were formerly owned by Lartigue's third wife, Florette (née Ormea), whom he married in 1945.

This silver medal for the Bruntsfield Links Golfing Society has a guide of £400-500 as part of a sale of sporting memorabilia held by Mullock's in Telford, Shropshire, on May 25-26.

With hallmarks for the Edinburgh silversmith James Nasmyth, it is engraved to the obverse Golf Subscription Medal and on the reverse Gained by Walter Lothian Esq - Edinr.

The Edinburgh Almanac from 1827 lists Walter Lothian as the holder of the Bruntsfield Links Golfing Society medal. It comes for sale from estate of golfiana collector David Easby.

This bronze and ivory Art Deco sculpture by Demetre Chiparus is expected to sell for between £30,000-50,000 in Mitchells' next Antiques & Fine Art sale in Cockermouth on June 15-16. Solo measures 20in (50cm) high and is signed in the alabaster base.

Estève visits London a second time

With the museum dedicated to the French artist closed for renovation, St James's gallery displays works

by Frances Allitt

Thirteen abstract watercolours produced from 1957-93 are at the centre of Stoppenbach & Delestre's show on the French artist Maurice Estève (1904-2001).

It runs at the St James's, London, gallery from May 26-June 30, and it is only the second show to focus on the artist ever to take place in the UK.

The exhibition coincides with a two-year renovation programme at the Musée Estève in Bourges, during which doors to the institution will be closed – making this show a prime opportunity to see some of the painter's works in person.

In some ways, Estève may be viewed as part of the 'system' of 20th century art history. He was openly inspired by the greats of previous generations such as Nicolas Poussin, Fouquet and Paul Cézanne.

He was not alone when he chose to work in abstraction and with colour, particularly in post-war France.

Others who pursued similar aesthetic lines include well-known names such as Roger Bissière (1886-1984) and Gustave Singier (1909-84) just in France, while in the US Abstract Expressionism was taking the world by storm.

In 1937 Estève participated in the decoration of the aviation and railway pavilions at the Paris Universal Exhibition with Robert and Sonia Delaunay. And in 1941, he landed an exclusive contract with the gallery Louis Carré, which allowed him to dedicate himself to his work.

However, he seems to have thought of himself as a highly individual worker. He was largely self-taught and tried hard to create a personal, organic visual language. Though he did exhibit his creations, he was somewhat averse to the process.

Own vision

According to Monique Prudhomme-Estève, the co-author of Maurice Estève catalogue raisonné who is collaborating with the gallery on the show, he was in some ways the quintessential artist.

"Being labelled as an abstract painter and a representative of the '50s generation was unbearable for him," she writes. "Estève preferred remarks that surprised him, did away with labels and encouraged himself to pursue his own vision, questioned by himself and always plagued by 'lessons' left behind by the work of Cézanne."

Now he comes to a UK audience to attract newcomers or delight those already familiar with his pictures.

The works offered are from a single-owner collection. Along with the watercolours and other one-off works, which are priced from £10,000-140,000, lithographs are available for £1000-3000 each. ■

The web shop window

Thousands of items are available to buy from dealers online. Here we pick out one that caught our eye this week.

Just who is the silent woman? The headless figure has taken up residence on pub signs for centuries, but her origin is uncertain.

It could be a straightforward joke possibly based around garrulous smugglers' wives or incautious landladies. Look back far enough and some think she could be the 'Good Woman' Anne Boleyn, executed by Henry VIII.

On the other hand, some folklorists think the figure dates back to St Osyth, beheaded by heathens in Anglo-Saxon times. A spring burst from where her head fell.

Whatever the truth of the matter, a good example of her can be seen on this mid-20th century pub sign. Hand painted on metal and inscribed Since the Woman is quiet let no man breed a riot, it is offered by folk art dealer John Cornall Antiques for £650.

In the cataloguing the dealer refers back to the most ancient versions of the woman (a martyr) and says: "As an emblem this image or sign stands for the good wife 'silenced' but still with voice, commemorated as an opponent to the establishment, an example of virtue and standing by one's truth. What appears at first as ribald misogyny turns out to be the reverse."

There is more to be learned on the sign both on the dealer's website and on the extensively researched Instagram caption on the same item.

News in brief

Josh Lilley Gallery of Mayfair, London, is exhibiting a group of pictures, sketchbooks and collaged papers by Patrick Caulfield (1936-2005), many of which have never been seen before.

The bulk of the show, which is a loan exhibition from May 18-June 20, comes from the artist's archive.

Alongside the exhibition, the gallery offers a new edition of prints produced by the artist's family on the 50th anniversary of Some Poems of Jules Laforgue with Images by Patrick Caulfield (1973). The four new prints have been made in an edition of 100, half of which the family will keep. The remaining 50 are offered at the gallery for prices starting at £5000.

The gallery is also researching and cataloguing more than 200 individual studies from the collection of Paulin Caulfield, the artist's wife.

Dealer Lilley says: "Caulfield's output in his lifetime was judicious and limited, edited with reticence about how much he was willing to reveal. He reconciled society and solitude. He loved the company of others, but he didn't ask for help or advice.

"This is a lot to do with being poor in post-war Britain, the bleakness of his upbringing and the need for self-sufficiency, and a family that did not really communicate."

The Houghton Seminar's theme this year is The Power & Prestige of Collecting: Looking at Private & Museum Collections and their Survival.

The event runs from June 28-29 at the Society of Chemical Industry at 14 Belgrave Square, London. The seminar's usual venue, The British Academy, is currently closed for refurbishment.

Speakers include Caroline de Guitaut, deputy surveyor of the King's works of art, Claudia Lehner-Jobst, director of the Augarten Porcelain Museum in Vienna, and Karol Wright, president and executive director of the Corning Glass Museum.

bought a few months before and taken to Waterloo where he was killed.

This type of provenance really brings items to life and adds to their appeal.

Personally, I would love to find an item of furniture belonging to one of my heroes, Admiral Horatio Lord Nelson.

1 How did you get your start?

After finishing college and trying to avoid entering the antiques trade, I worked for several years in the leisure industry. Then I was offered a job at Duncan Baggott Antiques which was a wonderful education in many different disciplines of antiques.

After the death of our father, I took on the family business with my brother Sean who had been working for Manfred Schotten Antiques.

We soon decided that the way forward in making our names in the trade was to specialise, and as campaign furniture had always been of great interest this was a logical choice.

2 What events do you have coming up?

Having just had an exhibition and shown at Petworth fair, we will be concentrating on newsletters while we spend time researching and writing our forthcoming book on campaign furniture.

3 What is one great discovery you have made?

We have been fortunate to have had some great discoveries, though one of the most satisfying ones was a trunk by Handfords belonging to a Captain Blackwood of the 69th Regiment. Our research into both the maker and owner showed that the trunk had to have been

4 Do you have antiques in your home?

I like to mix it all up; have a great blend of antiques ranging from unusual furniture of different periods, antique metalware and various little collections. So you could expect to see more chairs than any household would reasonably ever need, dozens of candlesticks and early sculpture mixed in with contemporary paintings by George Underwood.

5 Real ale or espresso martini?

I do like a pint of Donningtons BB, our local ale, though I equally enjoy a good glass of red wine with a decent cheese.

Auction Calendar May 24 - June 6

The original and authoritative sales listing

This is a calendar of art, antiques and general auctions to be held as live sales in the UK and Ireland over the next two weeks. It also includes timed online auctions running on thesaleroom.com.

Every effort is made to ensure information is accurate at the time of going to press (typically Friday 2pm before the week of publication). Readers are reminded to check with the auction house directly to (i) understand the conditions under which the auction is taking place and (ii) to avoid disappointment in case of late changes, errors or omissions.

Our online calendar is updated throughout the week, check it regularly for the latest information.

Auctioneers are requested to contact us with details of their sales and inform us of any changes. Contact us at: [calendar@antiquetrade gazette.com](mailto:calendar@antiquetrade gazette.com)

Timed auctions on thesaleroom.com Bidding made easy

In a timed auction, there is no auctioneer taking bids from a live audience in a room. Instead, all the bidding takes place online.

Timed auctions have an end-time displayed on the lot page.

You can bid at any point from when the auction opens to when it closes.

As a bidder, you can enter a max bid – the most you are willing to bid, using our set bidding increments and we do the rest. We will bid intelligently for you, bidding only enough for you to meet the reserve or stay in the lead.

Your max bid stays secret in our system. We won't share your maximum bid with the auctioneer, the seller or other bidders.

You'll see your 'current bid' when you log in and view the lot. If someone bids higher than your maximum, we will send you an 'outbid alert' via email, so you can decide whether to bid more.

If a bid is placed in the final few minutes before the auction closes for that lot, the time period will be extended by a number of minutes. The auction house can set the number of minutes, usually 10.

This is to stop 'sniping' – a practice used by bidders on some other websites whereby they rush to place bids in the last few seconds to prevent other bidders being able to respond before the auction closes.

Artist's Resale Right

Advertisements in Antiques Trade Gazette may mention Artist's Resale Right (ARR). Here is how it is applied'

Living artists and the descendants of artists deceased within the last 70 years are entitled to receive a resale royalty each time their work is bought. The right applies only when the sale price reaches or exceeds the sterling equivalent of €1,000 and is calculated on a sliding scale.

Please note ARR is calculated in euros.

Auctioneers will apply current exchange rates.

Royalty	Resale price up to
4%	€50,000.01 and €200,000
3%	between €200,000.01 and €350,000
1%	between €350,000.01 and €500,000
0.5%	between €500,000.01 and €1,000,000
0.25%	in excess of €1,000,000

Royalties are also capped so that the total amount of the royalty paid for any single sale of a work cannot exceed €12,500. ARR is exempt of VAT.

Dunhill 'Aviary' lighter sparks a bidding battle

An auction record was set for an Alfred Dunhill 'aviary' lighter at Chiswick Auctions, writes Roland Arkell.

The super-rare lighter depicting a pair of wading birds to one side and an egret to the other raced away from its estimate to bring £13,000 (plus 25% buyer's premium).

It's not difficult to see how Dunhill 'fish tank' lighters got their name. Not only do these chunky 1950 and 60s perspex and electroplated lighters resemble miniature aquariums, but most were decorated with aquatic subjects. The thick layer of Lucite, a material developed by the American air force during the Second World War, provides an illusion of movement. Each was designed and made by Dunhill factory artist Ben Shillingford or by Margaret and Allan Bennett, who worked from a workshop in their south coast home.

It is the so-called 'non-aquatic aquariums' depicting subjects other than fish that bring the highest

Sandon lots pass to new owners

Much-loved expert decided time was right to disperse his impressive collection

By Luke Hoey

If the name of Sandon is synonymous with Worcester, it perhaps came as no surprise that when a 1921 Royal Worcester vase that was a 1921 Royal Worcester vase that achieved the highest price in Christie's 125th Year's premium on April 16, 2022, was sold for £1,000,000, it was the same as the vase in 1921 by Harry Davis (1885-76), premier Sandon individual in his later years, as sold for £200,000 a private buyer in the room for the Henry Sandon Study at £100,000.

The private collection of the much-loved collector, antique dealer, auctioneer, lecturer and Worcester aficionado, Sandon, passed down to his daughter, the late Mrs. Sandon, who in 2021 offered on 279 lots estimated at a total value of £10m, including a generous holding of Worcester. The sale reached the auctioneer's highest ever price, including over 200 of the 279 lots sold.

Chorley's to sell Henry Sandon study collection

By Laura Chesters

Ceramics specialist Henry Sandon (1921-2022) will offer his private collection as part of Christie's 125th Year's premium on April 16, 2022.

The auctioneer, leading authority on Worcester porcelain and a specialist in personal collections, has decided to sell a group part of his personal collection.

The auction, titled The Henry Sandon Ceramics Study Collection, will take place on April 16 at 17 Princes Street, London, comprising 279 lots across 200 lots.

Sandon, whose own collection and ceramic career with an antiques dealer, lecturer and Worcester aficionado, Sandon, passed down to his daughter, the late Mrs. Sandon, who in 2021 offered on 279 lots estimated at a total value of £10m, including a generous holding of Worcester. # Career path leads to brocante buzz

Event held in Oxfordshire village includes a talk by dealer who also stars in a TV antiques show

by Joan Porter

One of the stars of BBC's The Bidding Room will be describing her career path from teacher and artist to antiques dealer during a special talk at the annual White Door Brocante in the south Oxfordshire village of Benson.

Decoratives dealer Jo Roberts, who has also featured in previous ATGs, will have a starring role on Friday, June 16, at this French-style event.

It is organised by Berkshire antiques dealer Elise Harris who launched the brocante in 2019.

"I love the chat and the buzz and it's noticeable that over the years fairs have become a lot less formal and offer a much wider range of stock as well as a broader demographic,"

It's noticeable that over the years fairs have become a lot less formal said Harris, who is an avid fair-goer, She added there will be lots on offer at the brocante which runs in Benson Parish Hall including furniture, mirrors, linens and textiles at prices starting from under £10 to £100.

Dealers at this brocante include Hetty Purbrick, co-organiser of the Decorative Living Fair in Kent, and textiles specialist Rebecca Engels. whitedoorbrocante.co.uk

Joy's Jay joy

Benson Parish Hall is also the venue for a long-standing antiques and collectors' fair which dealer Joy O'Meara of Jay Fairs – a veteran of the antiques events scene for 40 years – has organised for many years.

This runs on the third Sunday of every month from 9am to 3pm, with the trade limbering up for an 8am entry time, with the next on Sunday, June 18. ■

Bath time in Manchester

The Vintage Home Show runs in three locations including the atmospheric and restored Victoria Baths in Manchester (right). The 11-year-old fair is now a firm biannual fixture with the next on Sunday, June 4, packed with a sell-out 50-plus traders.

Pudsey Civic Hall in Leeds is the next venue on Sunday, June 18, and Londoners can look forward to the fair's annual outing at St Mary's Church in Primrose Hill on Saturday, September 16.

The Vintage Home Show business was taken over last year by dealer Lisa Doel after Keeley Rosendale took off most of her Discover Vintage fairs-organising hats to spend more time with her family

Doel had traded in vintage, Mid-century and decorative salvage at the Discover Vintage events for five years and she now runs the fairs under the banner Ginger Biscuit Events – although Rosendale still runs the biannual Festival of Vintage at York Racecourse.

Ideal for impressing cool customers

This classy teak wine cooler exudes Mid-century style, all clean lines and simplicity.

It was designed in the 1960s by Danish sculptor and designer Jens Quistgaard, known principally for his work with the US company Dansk Designs where he was chief designer from 1954 and for the following three decades.

Priced at £99 with KES Vintage, this is just one of the delights you will find from dealers at Karen Stuckey's busy Wanstead Vintage Fair.

The event is held four times a year at the Victorian Grade II-listed Wanstead United Reform Church in Redbridge, east London, with the first this year running on Saturday, June 3, with 30 stallholders.

Why it is crucial to avoid crossing the line from being potential purchaser to adviser

A lawyer writes:

‘Substantial payout’ underlines the need for absolute clarity from experts

by Milton Silverman

I was recently presented for a third time with a scenario which dealers must come across from time to time.

A collector sought some advice from an expert in the field, on a work which the collector was thinking of selling.

The pair got on well; the collector visited the expert’s impressive premises, discussions were held, emails exchanged and some helpful input was provided from the expert how best to present the work: eg don’t sell it now, don’t just go to the obvious well-known port of call, sell it quietly, discreetly, much better for it to be ‘fresh to the market’ etc.

The collector left matters in abeyance for quite some time while he turned his mind to other things.

Eventually he returned once again to ventilate the sale of this work with the expert.

It was a large and unusual 17th century Spanish picture in very poor condition but very valuable nevertheless.

Discussions were renewed and all went well. Eventually the expert took the picture in for review and consideration.

He then made an offer. This was accepted and the collector was delighted with the deal.

Sold for a ‘huge amount’

A few years later the collector was advised by a friend that ‘that picture that you sold – it went for a huge amount of money at an auction the other day’. The ‘huge amount of money’ proved to be many times the price he had received.

The collector came to see me.

Going through the correspondence it was very clear that the collector had sought ‘advice’ from the expert and the expert had indeed been ‘an adviser’ to the collector.

The word ‘advice’ had actually been used in correspondence. And it was the expert that had sold the picture for the ‘huge amount of money’.

The bottom line was that, given the facts, and all the surrounding circumstances, the expert owed a ‘duty of care’ to advise the collector on the best price available.

So, the usual exchange of correspondence commenced between myself on the collector’s behalf and the expert’s solicitors.

“There was no duty of care at all,” said the expert’s lawyers. “The position was as follows...”

“Yes there was, it was plain and obvious,” said I, on behalf of my new client, and I too went on to elaborate.

And so the argument went on, and on, for some considerable time. As a matter of law we advised that there was a misrepresentation entitling our client to rescind the contract of purchase and that it was now therefore rescinded.

After many months, there was a substantial payment out by the expert, very much reduced from the claim made, but plenty to leave the client delighted with the result.

Make it clear

It is very easy for dealers to fall into this trap.

To avoid doing so they want to make it completely clear – as I recommended to ATG readers in issue No 2561 last year – from the beginning that they are not advising the customer walking through the door but that they are themselves a potential customer – ie an independent third-party purchaser only with no duty of care to the potential seller.

The critical thing is to avoid ‘crossing the line’ from being a potential purchaser to being ‘an adviser’.

Stick at all times to the role of purchaser. This may not be easy but it will be worth it.

Milton Silverman is senior commercial dispute resolution partner at Streathers Solicitors LLP, London.

It is very easy for dealers to fall into this trap

Obituary – Lord Brooke of Sutton Mandeville

It would be hard to overstate Peter Brooke’s contribution to the British art market.

As MP for the Cities of London and Westminster, his constituency encompassed most of the galleries and auction houses that made London a powerful international marketplace, something he looked on as an essential part of the capital’s image and drawing power.

Driving force

He had a profound interest in the world of art and antiques. In 1995 he accepted the presidency of the BADA and the following year he was a driving force in the formation of the British Art Market Federation (BAMF), recognising that it was essential that all the elements of the market communicated a united message to the government.

He was president of the BAMF from 1996 to 2014, a period that saw major political changes affecting the art market. The European Community was pushing forward with the creation of the Single Market, a project with which Peter strongly agreed, but he believed that EC harmonisation should not be driven through at the expense of Europe’s ability to compete in the world.

This became a serious risk and his ministerial experience at the Treasury and Department of National Heritage helped pilot the art market through many difficult challenges. Those who feared that Peter’s influence as a former Conservative minister might be diminished with the advent of the Labour government need not have worried. His wisdom, courtesy and humour ensured that he was widely respected and admired on all sides of Parliament.

Discussions of all political subjects, however dry, were leavened by his wit and extraordinary memory for whimsical anecdotes.

When the government was proposing a new law to control the sale of archaeological objects, Peter described the challenges faced by the antiquities market as a combination of ‘Sir Leonard Woolley’s Ur and Sir Rider Haggard’s She’.

Bowled over by Gorbachev

Cricket played a central part in his life and conversations rarely omitted a cricketing story. When President Gorbachev of Russia, a keen student of philosophy, visited Margaret Thatcher, he expressed his delight at being in the land of Hobbes and Locke.

Nigel Lawson, a fellow cricketing enthusiast, afterwards remarked to Peter that he had been surprised by the president’s knowledge of Surrey county cricket.

Peter Brooke gave freely of his immense knowledge and experience. His advice was invaluable to BAMF and to me personally, and he became a much valued friend.

In an age dominated by egotistical celebrities, his gentlemanly modesty stood out.

The art market owes him an enormous debt of gratitude.
